

Premier Praises Roosevelt's Part In Averting War

Chamberlain Hails
'Voice of Most Powerful Nation'
DEFENDS ACCORD
'I Have Nothing to Withdraw or Regret,'
He Says

London — (P) — Prime Minister Chamberlain today paid tribute to the contribution of President Roosevelt to last week's negotiations which averted a European war.

"The voice of the most powerful nation in the world," spoke across the sea to sway Europe's statesmen to ways of peace, declared Chamberlain in his defense in a tense house of commons of the Munich four-power accord for dismembering Czechoslovakia.

The prime minister angrily tossed back cries of "Shame!" at his critics and announced an immediate $50,000,000 loan for dismembered Czechoslovakia.

"The prayers of millions were answered" by the Munich pact, Chamberlain declared.

Lands Other Leaders
Chamberlain paid tribute to President Roosevelt and to his fellow signatories of the Munich agreement, Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Primiers Mussolini and Daladier.

"The messages of President Roosevelt, so fairly and yet so persuasively made, showed how the voice of the most powerful nation in the world could make itself heard across 3,000 miles of ocean and away the minds of men in Europe," said the prime minister.

Chamberlain told the house "I have nothing to withdraw or regret" concerning the accord of Munich.

Chamberlain began his defense of his bargain with the German chancellor and the primers of Italy and France after it had been bitterly assailed by Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned Saturday as first lord of the admiralty because the Munich terms "stuck in my throat."

Faced 'Great Menace'
"When the house met last Wednesday we were under the shadow of a great and imminent menace," the prime minister said. "War, more stark and terrible than it had ever appeared before, seemed to be staring us in the face."

"Before I had sat down the message had come which gave us new hope that peace might yet be saved."

"Today we know with joy and thankfulness that the prayers of millions have been answered." There were thunderous cheers.

Chamberlain received a great ovation from the government side when he rose to speak at 3:32 p. m. (9:32 a. m. C. S. T.).

"The responsibility of the members of the cabinet during the last few weeks has been almost overwhelming," he said. "Some of us will carry the mark of it for the rest of our days."

Declaring that haste in reaching a settlement of the Czechoslovak crisis was imperative, Chamberlain went on:

"All the elements were present for the outbreak of a conflict which might have precipitated a catastrophe."

The prime minister announced the government had requested the Bank of England to provide the necessary credit for a loan of 10,000,000 pounds ($50,000,000) to the Czech government.

The government is considering a Czechoslovak request for a total loan of 30,000,000 pounds ($150,000,000), he said.

Duff Cooper explained his resignation with a bitter denunciation of British policy throughout the crisis over Czechoslovakia.

He declared that Britain must be prepared to fight against any other attempt by any nation to dominate Europe by force.

The diplomatic gallery was packed by representatives of almost every country in the world, including:

In Gary, Indiana there was a regular "birth boom" last month. 257 birth certificates were issued, but at least 50 of them were young men and women all over 20 years of age. It seems that various government agencies insist on age proofs and in those cases, the applicants have to be "re-born."

Madison Man Gives Melon Party for Children of City

Madison — (P) — Several thousand Madison school children, their stomachs filled with watermelon, gave loud cheers on Monona avenue yesterday for Charles W. Wacker, Charley, who sells hand written calling cards at his stand near city hall, thought it would be a splendid idea to get the youngsters together to see how much watermelon they could eat.

He found out by disposing of 4,000 melons.

First he gave the children a pep talk and told them to be orderly while the cutters were serving the fruit. Thirty cutters doled out slices at eight tables along the avenue.

After two hours of gormandizing the youngsters dove into the melon pile and took the remainder home with them.

"If business is good I am going to make this an annual affair," said Charley.

He figured the party cost him $100.

Searchers Fail to Find Missing German Airliner

Berne, Switzerland, (P) — Swiss German and Italian planes hunted without success today for a German airliner missing with 10 passengers and a crew of three.

The German plane was last reported last night passing over a mountain highway near Davos on a flight from Frankfurt on the Zurich, Germany, to Milan, Italy.

With the German Army of Occupation in Sudetenland — (P) — Adolf Hitler personally assumed power over this former Czechoslovak territory in a triumphant military procession today and declared that "never will this land be torn from the reich."

Following his armies through the heart of Sudetenland he made two steps to accept guardianship of all Sudeten Germans and invite them to join "our march into a great German future."

At Wildenau, on the frontier, Sudeten Nazi Leader Konrad Henlein symbolically handed the entire Sudeten territory to him. At Eger he was welcomed by cheering inhabitants and formally took the Sudeten capital into his expanding Germany.

Through the 17-mile ride from Wildenau at Eger, Hitler was acclaimed as a liberator. The Fuehrer rode the entire distance standing in an open automobile, his face solemn and his arm ever raised in salute.

Soldiers Guard Route
The cortege moved slowly through lines of cheering people. Soldiers were stationed at intervals along the route.

Two armored cars preceded Hitler and Henlein, who rode with him. Behind them came General Walther von Reichenau, army corps commanding officer; Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister; and Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police organizations.

A few cars back was Frau Henlein and her three children. She had greeted Hitler at Wildenau with a bouquet.

Hitler spoke in the market place of Eger, one of the "capitals" of

Ask Deeper Probe By House Group

Manufacturers Want Further Inquiry on Fascist-Nazi Charges

Washington — (P) — The National Association of Manufacturers has asked the house committee investigating un-American activities to "go further" into charges that "certain high industrialists" in this country are linked to fascist and Nazi activities.

Testimony that such a union existed was given to the committee last week by John C. Metcalf, its special investigator, but he mentioned no names.

Noting that omission, Charles R. Hook, president of the association, said in a letter to Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house group:

"We do not believe it is sufficient to stop with allegations against 'certain high industrialists.' This must inevitably be a reflection upon all industrialists."

"Speaking for the board of directors of the N. A. M. I respectfully urge that you go further in your investigation of hidden fascist, Nazi, communist or other un-American activities."

Asserting "we can not believe that any American industrialist would participate in such movements," Hook said persons named there "should be forced to stand before the public and receive the judgement of the people."

The victims were Mrs. Theodore Baumgartner, 19, of Brooklyn, Wis.; her 14-month-old daughter, Donna Dean, and Beverly Derr, 3.

Mrs. Baumgartner was driving the automobile of her brother, Fred Derr. He said that just before the accident he waved at Derr and her husband, who were walking along the highway near the crossing.

Green Scores CIO Chief as Confab Opens

Charges Lewis Leading Movement He Once Termed Communist

U. S. BOARDS RAPPED

Federation to Determine Future Attitude Toward New Deal

Houston, Texas — (P) — American Federation of Labor delegates opened their fifth-eighth annual convention today to debate and vote on policy proposals shaping the federation's future attitude toward the New Deal and its program of social and economic reforms.

William Green, president of the federation, keynoted the opening session with a blistering attack on the CIO Chairman John L. Lewis.

Flushed and perspiring, Green pounded the speaker's stand with his fists, and declared Lewis now was leading an industrial union movement he condemned in 1924 as one of the objectives of the communist international.

Green waved before the convention audience a statement he said Lewis gave a senate committee in 1924 charging the communists were trying to gain control of the A. F. of L. to obtain their labor objective — "one big union."

"Lewis is now engaged," he said, "in leading a movement which has that very thing for its objective."

Assails Labor Board
Green was loudly applauded as he launched into an attack on the administration of the Wagner act by the labor relations board.

Pre-convention developments, coupled with an A. F. of L. executive council report calling for revision in legislation affecting the workingman, indicated federation leaders were becoming increasingly critical of government administrative boards.

Labor officials predicted the biggest test would come when the convention is asked to decide how far the A. F. of L. should go in opposing senate confirmation of Donald Wakefield Smith's reappointment to the national labor relations board.

Federation leaders, after denouncing the board's rulings in some cases as "pro-C.I.O.," appealed to President Roosevelt in August to replace Smith when his term expired.

The building and metal trades departments were reported preparing a resolution calling on the convention to endorse the fight against Smith.

The building trades unions already have proposed that every senator and candidate for a senate seat be asked to state publicly whether he will agree to vote against the appointment.

In its annual report to the convention, suggesting the board's discretionary powers be curtailed by amendments to the act, the council asserted some NLRB rulings were "an unwelcome intervention in labor's internal problems by a government bureau."

Liner Queen Mary Has Record Passenger List

New York — (P) — Facilities of the liner Queen Mary were strained to accommodate the 2,112 passengers the vessel landed today, the largest list she ever had carried.

Twenty-four hours before she sailed from England several hundred Americans tried to obtain accommodations to get away from what then looked like war. The Queen Mary was able to carry only 275 of them and most were set up in the drawing room of the museum, and in the broadcasting room to accommodate the extra passengers.

Ship's officers said passengers were jubilant Thursday night when it was announced the four-power pact had been signed at Munich.

U. S. Supreme Court Pays Tribute to Late Justice Cardozo as It Launches Fall Term; Facing Much Litigation

Washington — (P) — The supreme court opened its new 1938 term today by paying tribute to Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, who died last July.

As soon as the black-robed justices filed into the marble-columned chamber, Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes delivered a brief eulogy of the late jurist.

A vacant chair served as a reminder that a successor to Justice Cardozo has not yet been appointed by President Roosevelt.

Hughes said the court had suffered an "irreparable loss" in Justice Cardozo's death.

The chief justice, who spoke with out referring to manuscript, referred to Cardozo's career as "one of the most illustrious in judicial annals."

North Shore Set to Resume Rail Service

Workers Approve Agreement Ending Controversy Over Wage Cut

AWAIT COURT STAND

Portion of Pay to be Made In Receiver's Certificates

Chicago — (P) — Plans to resume service on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad this week were formulated today after operating workers approved an agreement ending a seven weeks' controversy over a pay cut.

The electric line, serving more than a score of suburbs and other communities between Chicago and Milwaukee, abandoned operations Aug. 16 when operating employees quit in protest against a 15 per cent wage reduction.

Terms proposed by Colonel A. A. Sprague, federal receiver for the road, were accepted by the 950 operating workers for the next 30 days, and in Milwaukee last night. The company has approximately 1,300 employees.

The agreement provides for a contract until May 31, 1939, with the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, and a closed shop.

The old wage scale was established but employees receiving more than 50 cents an hour will be paid 20 per cent in receiver's certificates for 30 days and 15 per cent in the following 30 days.

Others will be paid entirely in cash. The pay scale will be subject to adjustment after three months.

Plan up to Judge
Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, will be asked to approve the agreement tomorrow.

Robert Armstrong, member of the union's executive board, said the agreement included provisions for a closed shop, designation of the Amalgamated as sole bargaining agent, and creation of an arbitration board to settle future disputes which may arise.

Although a closed shop was established, supervisory and clerical employees and workers covered by other labor contracts would be exempt from the Amalgamated's control. The Amalgamated held a contract for 19 years prior to the strike but its jurisdiction was challenged recently by two rail brotherhoods. The national labor relations board has yet to make a decision.

The agreement provided for seniority to be based on seniority. It also ordered maintenance of the status quo for a period of 90 days after the outbreak of any future dispute. The dispute would be arbitrated by one representative from each side and one neutral arbitrator if negotiations during the 30 day period fail to effect a settlement.

Madison Lawyer to Ask Court to Quash Branigan's Sentence

Madison — (P) — Darrel MacIntyre, Madison attorney, said today he will appeal to the state supreme court to set aside the state jail sentence imposed upon E. R. Branigan, Beloit politician, who was convicted at Janesville Sept. 16 on charges of criminal libel.

Branigan, a fuel dealer, acted as his own attorney during the trial but has retained MacIntyre to represent him before the supreme court.

He was found guilty of publishing false statements against a number of Rock county officials and attorneys.

John Louis 35, publisher of the Farmer - Labor News, Janesville, was convicted with him and sentenced to eight months in jail.

Maker of Fatal Elixir Admits Violating Law

Greeneville, Tenn. — (P) — S. E. Massengill of Bristol, Va.-Tenn., pleaded guilty in United States district court today to 112 of 166 counts charging him with violating the pure food and drug act, and was fined $150 on each count by Judge George C. Taylor.

The charges grew out of the manufacture and distribution by the Massengill Manufacturing company of an elixir of sulfanilamide, which, the government contended, was a contributing factor in the deaths of more than 70 persons last year.

Democrats Intend To Replace Henry In November Race

Henry Scrambles Whole Political Set-Up in State

Progressives Surprised, Republicans Elated By Withdrawal

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Wisconsin politics, troubled ever since the primary, became even more embroiled today while politicians were trying to figure out the exact meaning of Robert K. Henry's withdrawal as the gubernatorial nominee of the Democrats. Henry announced Saturday night that he would quit the contest in favor of Julius P. Heil, Republican nominee.

The announcement of the Jefferson banker and former Democratic state treasurer literally flabbergasted most observers who have watched closely the drift in state politics. It was the more surprising after the failure of the move last week, initiated by Republicans, to get Henry supporters on the Coalition executive committee to urge their candidate to withdraw in favor of Heil.

"The only way in which this state can be rid of the political adventurers grouped about the LaFollette brothers," Henry said in a statement addressed to the citizens of Wisconsin, "is for the majority opposed to this self-seeking dynasty to unite their strength behind one candidate."

Henry declared that he would vote for and support Julius P. Heil, Republican nominee for governor chosen in that party's open primary, "and that the candidates for other state offices who were victorious on both tickets at the primary."

Help For Heil
The greatest significance in Henry's action is the tremendous increase in the support which Nominee Heil is likely to carry into the general election. Henry was generally reckoned early this year as the most popular of the most available Democratic candidate. Because of his conservative leanings, however, and the fact that he became a Coalition candidate and favored the

German Flying Boat Regarded as 'Lost'

Berlin — (P) — Lufthansa officials said today that a flying boat of the line, overdue on a transatlantic crossing from Brazil to Bathurst, Gambia, west African British colony, must be "regarded as lost."

The line said a mailbag and two pieces of wood from the fuselage of the plane were found about 25 miles east of Bathurst. Two thermos bottles and two lifebelts were fastened to the wood.

The plane left Natal, Brazil, Saturday afternoon. Its last report of position late Saturday placed it about 80 miles off the African coast.

Loyalists Fight to Recapture Positions

Hendaye, France, at the Spanish Frontier — (P) — Militiamen counter-attacked on the Ebro front, government dispatches reported today, in an effort to recapture positions lost to insurgents during the weekend.

The government line was concentrated on "Hill 454," where insurgents reported breaking through successive lines of government fortifications along a two-kilometer front.

The plane left Natal, Brazil, Saturday afternoon. Its last report of position late Saturday placed it about 80 miles off the African coast.

A giant air battle was fought over the Ebro front with some 80 warplanes participating.

OUT OF RACE

Robert K. Henry, Jefferson banker, threw a bombshell into the Wisconsin political situation Saturday night when he withdrew as the Democratic candidate for governor. He won the nomination as a coalition candidate in the primaries.

Henry threw his support to Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee, in an effort to defeat "the LaFollette dynasty." Democrats pledged all gaps in the primary's ticket would be filled for the November election.

Anti-Nazis Again Prevent Volksbund Meeting in East

Crowd of 2,000 Forces Police to Ask Kuhn to Call Off Rally

Union City, N. J. — (P) — Militant rock-hurling anti-Nazis today had thwarted for the second time in two weeks an attempt by the German-American Volksbund to hold a rally in North Jersey.

An infuriated crowd of 2,000 forced police to request Fritz Kuhn, national bund leader, to call off last night's celebration by his followers of the German acquisition of Sudetenland and of a traditional Bavarian festival.

The boisterous demonstrators, some of whom wore veterans' overseas caps, stoned Kuhn as police Commissioner Harry E. Little escorted him from headquarters of the Hudson County bund to a waiting automobile.

They previously had made two attempts to storm the hall, guarded by nearly 100 policemen. They burned Hitler in effigy and at sight of Kuhn shouted "kill him." Fist fights broke out between bundists and demonstrators who carried banners of the American League for Peace and Democracy, the International Labor Defense, and the Czechoslovakian societies of Hudson county.

Two weeks ago in Elizabeth, part of a hostile crowd of 3,000 seized possession of a hall where the bund had scheduled a meeting. The remainder massed in front and barred entrance. Fights occurred and finally police persuaded the bund not to go through with the meeting.

Denies Need for Railroad Pay Cut

Counsel Points to Increased September Business During Hearing

Washington — (P) — Counsel for railroad brotherhoods contended today that increasing business indicates there is no need for the 15 per cent pay cut the carriers have proposed.

Cross-examining a witness for the joint carriers' conference committee, Charles M. Hay of the brotherhoods' legal staff brought out before the president's railroad fact-finding board that carloadings for four weeks in September exceeded those for any other period this year.

The witness, Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, countered with the assertion that while this was true, carloadings still were 20 per cent below the similar period in 1937. Parmelee is director of the bureau of railway economics of the Association of American Railroads.

"Do you know, if you get $250,000 out of us," Hay asked, "what the railroads would do with it?" He referred to the proposed pay cut, aggregating that amount.

Parmelee said the money probably would be spent for a number of things, including the hiring of additional labor, the paying of bills and increases in purchases.

"Then you couldn't pay fixed charges with it, could you?" demanded Hay, who has argued that the railroads are attempting to make the employees bear the burden resulting from excessive interest charges.

Withdrawal of Coalition Nominee Is Political Bomb

TO SUPPORT HEIL Surprise Move Is Followed by Denunciation, Praise

Milwaukee — (P) — A three-man race for governor still was in the political cards today despite Robert K. Henry's withdrawal as the Democratic nominee — a move followed promptly by denunciation and praise.

Echoes of Henry's political bomb fired Saturday night, still reverberated over the state today and were expected to continue undiminished in Madison tomorrow at the Democratic platform convention.

Henry, Jefferson banker who ran on both the Democratic and Republican tickets as a coalition candidate in the September primary, announced he was withdrawing to "keep the faith."

Henry placed upon Heil "The responsibility of defeating the LaFollette dynasty."

A pledge that all gaps in the party's ticket would be filled came from State Senator Harry Bolens of Port Washington. Democratic floor leader, after a closed, hurried meeting of Milwaukee county Democrats yesterday.

The party's candidates included: governor, none; United States senator, none; attorney general, James E. Finnegan; secretary of state, William R. Callahan, and treasurer, none.

Choice of a successor to Henry, appeared to be no simple problem, because of the platform. Attorney William B. Rubin of Milwaukee had drafted a tentative platform adapted to Henry's candidacy. Now that has been scrapped, and one more to the liking of Duffy, a New Dealer, is being prepared.

Face Complications
Complications are that Finnegan and Callahan, the two ticket survivors, are not New Dealers. Callahan said he "just couldn't go with Duffy," and that Wisconsin Democrats had indicated in the primary "they wanted conservative candidates. They licked every New Dealer."

Rubin declared Henry should be "excommunicated from politics," and added, "we have been stung by the national administration in our platform. Duffy will be better off without Henry on the ticket. A surrender of principle is worse than a LaFollette victory and I am willing to die for principle."

Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls attorney who took the G. O. P. nomination for United States senator, wired "Dear Bob" Henry last night that:

"We welcome you into our ranks. Beside yourself there are many thousands of Democrats and Progressives who believe that Jefferson, were he alive today, would find us his kind and your kind of Americans. You have done a courageous and splendid thing. You have kept the faith. Wisconsin will not forget."

Jerome Fox of Chilton, endorsed New Deal Democratic candidate for governor who ran second to Henry, said last night relative to reported movements to reenlist him:

"I haven't given it any thought. So far it looks sort of like a case of the bride being left at the altar — and the bride is still willing." He did not expect to attend the Madison convention, he added.

Other possibilities mentioned included Rubin, Daniel Grady of Portage, J. R. McQuillan of Antigo, and C. E. Broughton of Sheboygan. The platforms to be adopted by the Progressives and Republicans in Tuesday's conventions will, according to proposed plans, deal strongly with the national issues.

Banking Board Has No Power to Review Order, Loomis Rules

Madison — (AP) — Attorney General O. S. Loomis told the state banking board of review today it has no authority to review a banking commission order suspending the license of the H. M. Byllesby company of Chicago to sell securities in Wisconsin.

Transfer of the state securities division from the public service commission to the banking board does not confer any powers upon the board which it did not have before the change was made, Loomis said.

Byllesby company attorneys had filed an application for a hearing before the board, which is authorized to consider appeals from banking department decisions.

The attorney general said:

"The statutes provide for a hearing before the banking board of review on any order of the banking commission, but no such authority existed under the administration of the securities law by the public service commission and since there was no function to transfer to the banking department under the reorganization order, it cannot be argued now that the banking board of review has power to review an order relating to the suspension of a securities dealer's license."

but all three platforms are certain to reflect the results of the anti-LaFollette fusion movement.

The state senate, especially since 1931, has been the strategic house of the legislature from the standpoint of political control. Through a different kind of coalition Governor LaFollette controlled it in 1937.

Seven seats now held by Democrats are to be filled in November. In some of the districts Democrats are working on their own fusion plans.

Two state central committee chairmen, State Senator Myrwin Rowlands of the Progressives and James Corcoran, of the Democrats have announced they are not candidates for reelection to the chairmanship.

In the Republican convention there may be a contest over the reelection of State Chairman L. F. Gullikson. Wiley and Heil, the nominees for senator and governor are said to favor W. H. Gharrett, Chippewa Falls publisher, who managed Wiley's campaign.

Sudetenland, from a platform colorfully surrounded by flower girls in their picturesque costumes.

"Over this Germany, this greater Germany, is its shield, its sword, its protection," the Führer declared.

He stepped unexpectedly before cheering crowds at Eger, in the third and most populous of the four Sudetenland zones his troops will occupy before Saturday.

Almost half of the six minutes of his speech was taken up by the crowds, cheering and hailing their "Führer."

"I greet not only you, but the entire Sudetenland, which in a few days will belong to the Reich," he told them.

"Welded together in unity we must stand together. All must support each other."

"Deutschland is happy over these days. Not only you—the whole nation—is experiencing these days with you. The whole nation rejoices with you."

Your happiness is that of the 75,000,000 in the Reich that was hitherto.

The Führer evidently was referring to the fact that Germany's population soon will be almost 80,000,000.

"Similarly your sufferings of the past period were also our sufferings," he exclaimed.

"In this solemn hour let us thank almighty God that on our way thus far, He has blessed us and pray that

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Now It Has Been Told

With the publication of the British White Paper containing Lord Runciman's report to Mr. Chamberlain, the hidden history of the past seven weeks is now reasonably clear. The official disclosure shows how and why Hitler came to realize that without rising a general war he could insist on the annexation of the Sudeten regions rather than upon their autonomy within the Czechoslovak republic.

The decisive but hitherto unappreciated fact in the whole situation was that Hitler must have known before he committed himself at Nuremberg that Lord Runciman favored the dismemberment of the Czechoslovak state. Secure in this knowledge, Hitler was fully justified in his judgment that Mr. Chamberlain would never go to war to prevent the settlement which Mr. Chamberlain's own representative approved.

Conclusion Was Reached Before Talk at Nuremberg

Lord Runciman does not say just when he concluded that a solution was impossible within the frontiers of the Czechoslovak state. But there can be little doubt that he reached this conclusion before Hitler committed himself publicly at Nuremberg to the demand for annexation, and there can be little doubt also that Hitler knew Lord Runciman's conclusion not later than the week before the Nuremberg speech. For it was in that week that "The London Times" publicly declared in an editorial that the cession of the Sudeten territory could be regarded as the proper solution of the problem.

"The Times" editorial was indignantly repudiated at once by the British Foreign office, and no doubt with entire sincerity. But "The Times" is a responsible newspaper, and its editorial cannot have represented the merely personal views of its editor. The inference is unavoidable that "The Times" was expressing Lord Runciman's views, and that Hitler knew that "The Times" was expressing them. It is in the highest degree probable, moreover, that Hitler knew Lord Runciman's views even before "The Times" editorial. For in the last weeks of August Lord Runciman was spending his week ends at the country houses of Sudeten noblemen, and it is difficult to suppose that he could have concealed from them what he was coming to think about the issue. The conclusions which he formulated in his report to the Prime Minister constitute such a complete acceptance of the German argument that it would have been impossible not to see that Lord Runciman had been or was about to be converted.

That explains, as nothing else has yet explained, why in the week before Nuremberg Herr von Ribbentrop was able to advise Hitler so confidently that it was safe to demand annexation. He must have had private knowledge from Lord Runciman's Sudeten friends that the British mediator was disposed to favor annexation, and he had the semi-official declaration of "The Times" to clinch the argument.

Only Problem Was The Manner Of Surrender

The disclosure of the fact that Lord Runciman accepted annexation before Hitler demanded it is the crucial fact in the whole situation. That was why, without risking a general European war, Hitler could demand annexation and back up his demand with a threat of invasion. For once it was clear that Mr. Chamberlain's mediator had been won over, it was clear that Mr. Chamberlain would not and could not go to war to prevent annexation. All the representations made to Hitler by the British, all the solemn warnings and all the military preparations, had no influence, therefore, on the substance of the issue but only on the manner in which the territory would be surrendered.

That being the situation, Mr. Chamberlain should not have been taken back when he was told at Berchtesgaden that Hitler wanted that he be conceded Mr. Chamberlain should have supposed that Hitler would want less than the British mediator thought he was entitled to ask.

High School Seniors to Elect President Today

DRUNK FINED

Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning fined Edward Nobert, 509 N. Morrison street; $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp after Nobert pleaded guilty of drunkenness. The arrest was made by city police.

public discussion before the surrender of September 21 was accepted by Prague, Paris and London.

Hitler had some extremely interesting and significant things to say in his speech at the Sportplatz last Monday on how easy it was to arrange things with "a man" and how hard to arrange them with a democracy. So Hitler was a little perturbed about democratic opinion. But Hitler did know that he could afford to threaten since Mr. Chamberlain could not fail to surrender on an issue which Lord Runciman had abandoned some weeks earlier.

This also explains why Mr. Chamberlain had to subject himself and the British government to the humiliation of Berchtesgaden. Godesberg, and Munich. The alternative was to lay Hitler's case before public opinion and advocate publicly the acceptance of Hitler's demands. That would have placed him personally in an intolerable position and it would almost certainly have produced an explosion of public opinion which, so he must have believed, would make war inevitable. He chose, therefore, what must have seemed to him the lesser of two evils and worked to arrange the surrender by secret diplomacy undisturbed by the outcries of the democracies.

Reynolds Is Slated For Chairmanship Of Progressives

Green Bay Man Unopposed At Tomorrow's Platform Convention

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — John W. Reynolds of Green Bay, one of the old-line leaders of the Progressive party, probably will be elected chairman of the state central committee at the platform convention here Tuesday without opposition. E. M. Rowlands of Cambria, present state chairman, said here over the weekend.

Reynolds, it was learned early last week, has been decided upon by party leaders, including Governor LaFollette, as the best available candidate for the party chairmanship. This was confirmed over the weekend by Senator Rowlands, who said that he will not be a candidate for reelection.

Rowlands has held the state chairmanship for four years, ever since the party was organized at the Fond du Lac conference in 1934. He explained that his principal reason for retiring is the difficulty of handling party affairs during a campaign in which he himself is running for office. Rowlands is a candidate for reelection to the state senate from the Sauk and Columbia county district.

Progressives today would give little indication of the tenor of the party platform which will be adopted tomorrow, although it could be foreseen that Milwaukee and other southern lake shore delegates would arrive with a "production for use"—more precise people call it "socialism"—proposal. But, since the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation is far outnumbered in party membership and the number of candidates nominated by the party this fall, it could also be foreseen that such proposals will be voted down if the regulars desire it.

For the first time in recent years the Progressives will take a "back seat" in favor of the Republicans. State law provides that the party which polled the greatest number of votes in the primary election shall have the choicest meeting place in the capitol. That is generally considered to be the assembly chamber. This year the Republicans will have it while the Progressives will take the senate chamber. Democrats, who ran third in the primary, as they did in the 1936 general election, will have quarters in a private hotel in the capitol city.

Republican state platform early in the primary campaign, the Democratic state convention passed him over in favor of a former assemblyman and New Deal job-holder, Jerome Fox of Chillicothe.

In the primary election, in which the fusionists entered him on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, Henry easily bested Fox, but lost the Republican nod to Heil. However, Henry's combined total of votes for governor on both the Democratic and Republican tickets exceeded the vote for Heil on the Republican ticket, and was greater than Governor LaFollette's on the Progressive ticket.

Phil Not Surprised

Henry's dramatic statement will have immediate and profound repercussions. Governor LaFollette, elected by a minority vote in 1934 and 1936, now faces the strongest opposition of his career in political life from Heil, who virtually became the Coalition choice. LaFollette, however, professed unconcern, saying only, "It's no surprise to me."

Other leaders in the Progressive party, however, have been more frank. They have admitted that the outcome of the primaries, resulting once more in two conservative opponents for their chief, was exactly what they wanted. Now those desires have been blasted.

It also leaves the states Democratic organization in complete confusion. Democratic regulars castigated Henry before the primary. As New Dealers they would have no dealings with a conservative coalitionist who openly asked for Republican support and campaigned on Republican platform principles. But after the votes were counted the New Dealers, led by Senator F. Ryan, said they would accept the primary verdict and support the Democratic ticket, including Henry.

Now those leaders are faced with the necessity of finding another Democrat to enter the lists as an independent, in order to save the party from complete dismemberment. The name of that man remained conjectural today, although many seemed to think that the organization at its caucus before the platform meeting here tonight, would again decide upon Fox.

Change In Platform

It also led to some changes in the probable events at the Democratic platform convention tomorrow. The Democratic candidates will choose the state central committee which will name the new candidate for governor, and also candidates for lieutenant governor and treasurer.

"MERCY" KILLER

Because his wife suffered incurably from cancer, Harry Johnson (right), 66-year-old retired oyster salesman, killed her, he said, according to Hewlett, N. Y. authorities. "She begged me to do it," police quoted Johnson as saying.

State Sells Bonds So It Can Make Loans for PWA

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The largest number of applications for loans in a decade forced the state land department over the weekend to sell nearly half a million dollars worth of bonds in order to obtain enough money to meet the financial needs of Wisconsin municipalities and school districts. T. H. Bakken, chief clerk of the department, revealed today.

At least $700,000 in applications for loans from school districts, boards of education, cities, villages, towns and counties are still pending, Bakken declared. More than $1,000,000 already has been loaned since the land department's fiscal year started last March.

A considerable cushion remains for further municipal or school requirements, however, Bakken said. Of nearly $10,000,000, the state land department's four funds, about $5,000,000 still remains in bonds.

Principal reason for the extraordinary volume of loans this year is the desire of many school officials and municipalities to obtain money to pay for their share of PWA projects, Bakken believes.

Under the state constitution the commissioners of public lands, who are the attorney general, secretary of state, and state treasurer, have the power to approve loans from the common school, normal school, university and agricultural school funds which are administered by the department.

The money is loaned at 3 1/2 percent interest for varying periods. Procedure in making applications has been made simple, Bakken pointed out.

The money originally came from the sale of state public lands. The common school fund, the largest, now totals about $11,000,000, the normal school fund amounts to about $3,000,000, and the university and agricultural school funds represent about $300,000 each.

Income of about $600,000 a year is received from these funds from interest, rents, sales and other sources. Most of the money is used for current expenses of the schools. The principal of the common school fund increases by about $200,000 a year from escheats and fines turned over to it.

Iowa Man Is Governor Of Second Gyro District

Madison — (AP) — John Ikerd, of Clinton, Iowa, was elected governor of the Second district of Gyro International at the annual convention here yesterday.

Representatives of seven gyro clubs from Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin attended the sessions.

Harry Marsh of Madison was named lieutenant governor and Walter Bendfield of Milwaukee, secretary-treasurer.

The convention adopted a new constitution and made plans for establishing new clubs.

"Why Socialized Medicine?" will be subject for discussion when members of Technocracy, Inc., meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Wettengel building on College avenue. A paper on the subject will be presented by M. J. Kappell, 802 E. Pacific street. A panel discussion will follow.

Probe Purchase of Land for Highway Charge State Paid Excessive Price in Marinette County

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Thomas F. Davlin, chairman of the state highway commission, said here Saturday that the commission has instructed its Green Bay division office to furnish headquarters with the records of all negotiations and transactions involved in the alleged purchase for highway purposes of 3.39 acres of land from the Goodman Lumber company in Marinette county for $13,500.

Head of the Goodman Lumber company is Robert B. Goodman, chairman of the state conservation commission and local conservation leader. Goodman has also been a member of the Marinette county board.

Davlin said that he expected that information to reach the commission's office here Monday but that he would have no statement to make before the material is examined by the commission.

The highway commission chief explained that "all conveyances of that nature are as a matter of routine confirmed by the highway commission," and said that the transaction in question was also confirmed.

"This is a local issue in Marinette county," he added, "I'm not prepared to state whether the commission will issue a statement after receiving the information or not, but it is certain that no statement will be made before the information is received."

BOARD MEETING

The Appleton Board of Education will hold a regular meeting at 7:30 Tuesday night at the Lincoln school.

tickets but now running as Republicans by choice.

The absence of Henry from the council tomorrow makes it speculative whether the conservatives will have their way in the choice of candidates, in the drafting of a platform and in the selection of a new state chairman. Henry had last week decided upon former Senator William D. Carroll of Prairie du Chien to succeed James Corcoran of Webster as state party chairman. It is no secret that the faction headed by Senator Duffy will strive for an ardent New Deal platform at the convention here Tuesday.

The prospect of a Duffy fight against the conservatives, including the two remaining candidates on the state ticket, former attorney general James Finnegan and William Callahan, makes the Democratic meeting tomorrow the favorite in interest and significance.

The events of the weekend left state politics in the approximate position at which a small group of men aimed almost a year ago when they conceived plans for a Republican-Democratic union. Although their plans did not materialize according to the paper schedules Governor LaFollette for the first time in his life faces the prospect of what will be a virtual union of the strongest element of the Democratic party, and what appears to be a rejuvenated Republican organization fighting against him for the next five weeks.

It also leaves the states Democratic organization in complete confusion. Democratic regulars castigated Henry before the primary. As New Dealers they would have no dealings with a conservative coalitionist who openly asked for Republican support and campaigned on Republican platform principles. But after the votes were counted the New Dealers, led by Senator F. Ryan, said they would accept the primary verdict and support the Democratic ticket, including Henry.

Kaukauna Man Has Become Important Cog in State Machinery in 2 Months

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—It hasn't taken much time for Kaukauna's William F. Ashe to rise to a position of prestige and influence in Governor Philip F. LaFollette's administration.

Although he has been at the head of the new state department of commerce for only two months Ashe has already carved out an important niche in state government affairs, and is now busy as Governor LaFollette's confidential representative in the delicate strike difficulty involving Nash auto employees at Kenosha and Racine.

When the dispute between the Nash management and its unions reached a critical stage, it has been learned, the services of Ashe as a mediator were requested of the governor. With the help of representatives of the state labor board he led peace discussions in the controversy last week.

First of Its Kind

Affable, quiet and with an air of efficiency, Ashe quickly fitted himself to the state government community, and now has his department functioning, the first of its kind ever attempted in Wisconsin.

Early this month he saw begun a mammoth study by his department on the relative effect on business of the Wisconsin tax structure as compared with other neighbor states. Directly in charge of the project, with the cooperation of tax commission officials and other experts, is James Hanks, Ashe's administrative assistant.

Kalupa to Eiting Combination Clicks in Third Quarter

Kaukauna — Unable to gain consistently through a strong West De Pere line, the Kaukauna Merchants took to the air yesterday afternoon to gain a 6 to 0 win in their opening contest of the season. With Bud Kalupa tossing four times to Ed Eiting, the last for the score, the Kaukauna eleven went 75 yards late in the third quarter.

The Kaws showed their lack of practice but indications are that when their material rounds into shape they'll be hard to beat. Outstanding yesterday were Kalupa, Eiting, George Bloch at tackle and Dutch Egan, a halfback who directed the team well and intercepted three enemy passes at crucial times.

Two injuries struck the Kaws, Luther Grebe breaking an ankle and Omaha Gast spraining his, both in first half mishaps.

Strong on Defense

Kalupa, an all-conference line-man in 1938, showed unexpected ability at running and passing. Ed Eiting at end gathered in half a dozen passes and played a smashing defensive game. The entire Kaw line stood up well and the visitors never penetrated inside the Kaukauna 20 yard line.

De Pere was stopped on the Kaukauna 25 midway in the third quarter and then the Kaws started rolling. Kalupa passed to Eiting for a gain of 31 yards to the enemy 44. A line plunge lost two and then the Kaukauna-Eiting combination checked again for 14 yards to the 25. Kutz Derus smashed for eight through center, and after two more smashes netted but a yard Kalupa faded back and shot another to Eiting for first down on the five yard stripe. Two plunges made a yard, Kalupa to Egan was incomplete, but Kalupa to Eiting succeeded for the fourth straight time and the Kaws had six points. Bloch's kick for the point was wide.

The last quarter was played entirely in De Pere territory, with the Kaws on one occasion coming within inches of a touchdown. After their first score De Pere received on their own and Dutch Egan snagged a fumble on the next play to give the Kaws the ball on the 38. Bob Promer southpawed a pass to Eiting for a first down on the 22. Promer made seven in two tries at the line, but two passes were then knocked down.

3 Inches From Goal

Nelson ran the ball to midfield for De Pere on their first play, but Egan intercepted a pass and ran it back ten to the De Pere 40. Kalupa passed to Eiting for a first down on the 27. After two incomplete passes and a line buck Eiting gathered in another of Kalupa's throws on the eight yard line. Nelson made a yard apiece in two line smashes and Kalupa picked up five to the one yard line. When the ball was uncovered on the fourth down try it was three inches from the goal line.

De Pere punted out to the 25. Four plays netted the Kaws two yards, but George Bloch intercepted a De Pere pass on the 24-yard line. Kalupa and Maudel made it first down on the visiters' 9.

Mathie made two yard Promer four to carry the ball to the three yard mark, but Promer lost two and Kalupa made only one to give De Pere the ball on the four. An attempted pass bounced off the arms of the De Pere and into Kalupa's hands and the Kaw back returned to the two yard line but fumbled. De Pere touching the ball last before it went out of bounds.

What's New at the Library

Benjamin Franklin, by many thought to be the greatest personage the Western Hemisphere has ever produced, is the subject of a biography by Carl Van Doren which was received at Appleton Public library last week and is now ready for circulation. Certainly this man stood head and shoulders above his contemporaries. He is painted in full stature by Van Doren who began the work 10 years ago and who has set down the complete life as Franklin himself might have written it had he ever completed his famous autobiography. Here is the boy who walked the streets of Philadelphia munching on a loaf of bread, the youth who rose from printer's devil to become the New World's first great publisher, the man who invented stoves for his compatriots warmth and designed lightning rods for their safety, the executive who gathered supplies for Braddock's march into the wilderness, who raised a loan in France to gain his country's freedom, who shared in the framing of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the treaties with Britain and France.

Lotte Lehman, great lieder singer of this generation, shows a flair for literary expression in her own story, "Midway in My Song," which reveals as much of the artist in what she omits as in what she sets down. Her tributes to her fellow artists and her warm affection for them color the pages. Toscanini in particular receiving high praise. She tells of her early life, schooling and her ambitions, the beginning of her musical career and finally success.

The Yukon gold rush and its many exotic tales, among them the story of Pat Galvin, his pockets full of gold and his hands itching to spend it, comes to life in the pages of "Yukon Voyage" by Walter R. Curtin. Galvin visualized a great trading company that would supplant the earlier fur-trade organizations, and he planned hotels, stores and banks for the gold miners and in 1898 purchased the river steamship, Yukoner, to carry the supplies to Dawson. Blown-up boilers held up the voyage and at last the company was forced to winter in the ice. One of the group has recorded the story of the impatient travelers who found that cramped quarters and division of authority led to days of constant irritation and unpleasantness.

"Work Ends at Nightfall" by Marjorie Hillis is entirely different from her earlier work, "Live Alone and Like It." In this new volume Miss Hillis tells in verse of seven working women in the city who meet and talk about love, work, home and clothes, applying their conversation outwardly to women in general, while inwardly they fit it to their individual lives.

The trend today in young people's organizations is toward constructive activities, and the giving of plays is the answer to the problem for it keeps a group busy and entertained for some time planning and rehearsing and then giving an actual performance. "The Book of Original Plays and How to Give them" by Gardner and Arnaud gives plays which are suitable for all ages from younger children to adults.

In "The Mediaeval Universities" Nathan Schachner, the author, shows that in the history of the great universities may be found an almost complete history of mediaeval thought, the culture, their inordinate dignity and fierce democracy, their turbulent hard - drinking students, their bloody affairs, strikes and secessions, and withal their good hard learning and soaring philosophies appear in this book.

What happened during two months' cruising in the Gulf of California with sudden breathless glimpses of unexpected beauty and dynamic living in world of adventure is told in "Zoo Venture" by William Beebe. The author and his party were hunting the whale shark to study and photograph, observing the differences between Pacific and those of the Atlantic side of North America.

"Sky Roaming Above Two Continents" by Harry A. Franck is the record of a sky cruise which the author took, lingering at each interesting place he visited long enough to absorb the spirit of the country, and to acquire a surprising amount of knowledge about its people and customs. He journeyed aloft on horseback, by bus and motor car to Mexico, Guatemala, Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia and Venezuela and all the islands of importance lying in the Caribbean.

A practical hard-driving engineer, John D. Littlepage, collaborated with journalist Demaree Bess in writing the book, "In Search of Soviet Gold," to tell what he did and saw in Russia as one of the first American technicians called to Russia and one of the last to leave. Littlepage held a key position in Stalin's Gold Trust but had no interest in Soviet politics, and Bess was for many years Moscow correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

Paul Starrett, America's master builder who built the most famous early New York skyscraper, the Flatiron building, and the greatest in the world, the Empire State, has written his autobiography, "Changing the Skyline." He tells not only of his work but of the many persons with whom he was associated, among them Stanford White, Frank A. Munsey, "Betha Million" Gates and Al Smith. His firm recently was awarded the greatest housing contract ever let, the huge Metropolitan Life insur-

Election of Dewey Might Change National G. O. P. Picture in 1940

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—In New York politics, where Republicans are trying to turn progressive, there may be the beginnings of a new noble experiment. This is important nationally because if the effort succeeds and the Republicans elect Dewey for governor, he and the group of younger progressive Republicans around him are likely to dominate the party nationally in 1940, with a reasonable chance of reviving effective opposition to the Democratic party and restoring a more evenly balanced two-party balance.

That is the potential significance to be read into the political news that has been coming out of New York state, and particularly from the Republican convention at Saratoga Springs. There the more progressive Republicans, led by the new national committeeman, Ken Simpson, dominated the proceedings, as against the reactionary die-hards who have been attacking Simpson because he has played with Mayor LaGuardia and the American labor party. Every effort to prevent an open clash was made, but the progressives held the whip hand.

Rep. Bruce Barton, one of the Simpson group, was put in as keynote. He laid heavy stress on progressive objectives in a speech which the New York Herald-Tribune said would not appeal to reactionary Republicans but which nevertheless was much closer to the real wishes of the voters.

Dewey has been an unknown quantity, so far as general policies go and his acceptance speech revealed little as to his position on specific questions. But he did, as did Barton, emphasize the progressive side of the Republican party. He talked about social responsibility, the necessity of making the party a "progressive vehicle for democratic government" and remarked significantly that "it is not the function of a political party to die fighting for obsolete slogans." He praised the liberal Mayor LaGuardia as a man who had given New York city "honest, efficient, humane service."

Racket Issue May Be Useful Nationally

Dewey shaped his acceptance speech so as to make his chief issue the breaking up of the alliance between politics and racketeering. Capitalizing on his record as the Prosecutor of Tammany racketeers, he proposes to extend his crusade to a statewide basis. If successful with that issue in New York state, he is very likely to expand it into a national issue for his presidential drive in 1940.

For years the backbone of the Democratic party has been the reactionary machines on the south and the group of northern city and state machines—Tammany, Hague in New Jersey, Pendergast in Kansas City, and a number of others less famous but about as bad. These have thrived on New Deal jobs and money and the recent primary defeats showed that Roosevelt, with all he has done, has to bow to them when the showdown comes.

He still is no match for the machine, and for all of the idealism of the New Deal, the political framework underneath the Democratic party is in many localities not to be seen in broad daylight. It is so bad in Pennsylvania that it probably will cost the Democrats the governorship.

New Deal Expenditures Make Campaign Target

Eight years of the New Deal, with expenditure of such enormous funds and creation of so many government jobs, inevitably creates a target for such a clean-up campaign as Dewey might be expected to make. Hoover opened up on the "morality" issue a few nights ago but not effectively, for he is nursing an understandable craving for vindication and for seeing the ruination of the president who replaced him. The more intelligent Republican attack will waste little time trying to break Roosevelt down personally but will concentrate upon the unhealthy layers of fat which have grown over the New Deal during eight years of power.

That the Democrats realize the danger in Dewey is clear from the terrific pressure put on Senator Wagner to run against it. Washington left nothing undone to force him to run. When he refused they turned to Lehman, knowing that anyone except these two would be a pushover for Dewey, whom they must strike down now or probably face in 1940.

That is why Roosevelt—who in the last year has become very bitter about Governor Lehman—swallowed hard and announced to his press conference that news of Lehman's renomination made him "extremely happy."

Republican Gain In Next Election Seen by Lawrence

Expects Party to Increase
Number of Seats
In Congress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Domestic politics
now takes the stage in America.
Will President Roosevelt appeal for a Democratic Congress?

The answer to that question would seem already to have been given by the president himself when he said that he was interested in "liberals" and that he would favor "liberal"
Republicans as well as "liberal"
Democrats. Under the circumstances, it is not regarded here as consistent for Mr. Roosevelt now to issue any blanket appeal for the reelection of a Democratic Congress. And since it would be difficult to designate the "liberals" in the 435 members of the house and the 32 or more members of the senate up for election, the impression is gaining ground that Mr. Roosevelt will avoid a broad pledge.

Individual candidates, however,
who have won the Democratic nomination have been counting on the support of the president, especially since many of them are pointing either to a record of 100 per cent
New Dealism or are promising to fulfill all the obligations of 100 per cent rubber-stampism. Doubtless, in a few cases here and there, the president will find himself drawn in either by writing a letter of endorsement or by permitting his henchmen in the WPA and the PWA to turn on all the power of those governmental organizations.
If any other employers did such things to influence the voting of their employees, there would be cries raised and invectives uttered that would be heard all the way from Maine to California. But evidently the government as an employer enjoys special privileges under the Democratic regime.

Central Issue
The Republicans, of course, are making the central issue of the campaign—morality in public office and the ineptitude of the New Deal. No longer are the Republicans taking the position as a party that everything the New Deal has done is wrong or that everything in the way of legislation would be repealed if the Republicans were elected. The Republican state convention in New York pointed the direction of Republican policy.

The program is to impress the people that all the worthwhile objectives which have been bungled under the New Deal will be brought to realization and all the so-called reforms which have been really keeping men out of jobs will be superseded by measures that encourage rather than discourage employment and business operations.

The Democratic management is rather cagey about the outcome of the elections next month. The hurry call sent by the White House to get Governor Lehman to run again, although the president had himself snubbed and sarcastically criticized the New York executive, is a sign of the political humiliation which the president has had to swallow in order to try to save the situation in New York State for the Democrats.

Big Vote Getter
Governor Lehman won the enmity of the White House when he had the tendency to disapprove of the president's plan to break down the independence of the supreme court.

But the thrice-successful governor is a big vote-getter, and the Farley-Roosevelt plan has been to keep
New York State in the Democratic column even though an independent Democrat has to be accepted to head the state ticket.

Public sentiment with respect to the congressional elections is always hard to gauge because so many contests turn on the personalities of the candidates or strictly local or regional issues. But even the Democratic leaders concede that they will lose a number of seats to the Republicans and that the majority of the Democratic party in congress will be reduced.

The inside estimates of the Republicans vary from 25 to 50 seats to be gained. The Democrats are already saying for public consumption, they expect the Republicans to win 70 or 80, and that in an "off-year," when there is no presidential election to carry the lesser candidates through, the opposition party always makes gains. Actually, if the Republicans gain more than 30 seats, it will be a substantial victory for them and Democrats know it. For with the brazen use of public funds and relief machinery, no opposition party can hope to win a majority, and 25 Republican gains now is the equivalent of 125 new seats in ordinary times.

THE TARDY CONFERENCE

The recent conference at Munich was over nineteen years late.

But we have learned great things out of the World war and we may absorb something of equally great value out of our breathless skirting of the precipice last week.

Out of the World war we learned, indelibly and emphatically, that wars between nations are futile and sterile.

From European history since the forced peace of Versailles we should chalk up another piece of wisdom in this language—Revenge does not pay.

It hardly seems possible today that the great powers of the world only nineteen years ago could have slammed the doors on representatives of a nation like Germany whose rights were to be considered and who had proven through nearly 52 months of sacrifice a remarkably high standard of courage and fortitude.

Yet America cannot criticize the procedure that prevailed after the World war too severely because of our own dark record in the same respect. The ten years directly following our Civil war have been called by historians the Tragic Era. The bruised and bleeding South, that had fought as desperately as Germany in the last war, was berated and vilified, kicked and gouged, tied and gagged while a certain scum from the North that never saw the smoke of battle but had been making money out of the war and were looking for honors to crown their achievements, moved in below the Mason & Dixon line like a pest of grasshoppers.

Out of revenge the North gave the black man who couldn't even write his name to say nothing of pronouncing it full citizenship privileges, and when the white man scowled martial law was declared, the whites were pushed off the sidewalk and soldiers stomped through houses to humiliate residents while they sought evidence of conspiracy.

Probably that period did more harm to the country than the four years of Civil war.

But while we all from generation to generation learn slowly, we do learn.

BRIDGES FALLING DOWN

Maryland might as well let the subject of bridges drop. The facts are plain enough. Continued argument is a waste of breath. When the people have the facts there is the privilege of making up their minds to suit themselves. Democratic leaders say the President is far too lofty a character to use public moneys to influence an election.

The Maryland bridge projects were resting in a dust-covered pigeon-hole since 1934 until the Tydings primary.

Suddenly they awoke and leaped for the ring. It was only eight days before the primary that the President in his address at Morgantown became enthusiastic about the building of Maryland bridges. And, as has been the case with Mr. Roosevelt on other occasions, his enthusiasm knew no bounds.

Of course it wasn't to affect the primary. The President likes to give surprise parties, to be the bearer of good tidings and the destroyer of bad ones.

Just three days before the election Secretary Ickes sent this telegram to the PWA regional director at New York:

"The President has sent me a memorandum from New York directing that prompt attention be paid to the applications for the bridges at Havre de Grace across the Susquehanna River and over the Potomac River at Morgantown. I understand that these applications with accompanying dockets are still in regional office. Please give them right of way as to examination and forward with your recommendations at your earliest convenience."

Neither is there the slightest appearance of politics in this matter nor in the fact that within a few hours after receiving this telegram the machinery was moving.

The original plan proposed for Maryland was three bridges. The President in his address spoke of "bridges". Mr. Ickes named two bridges.

But after the primary the project was cut to one bridge.

Anyone who can see an attempt to influence the people of Maryland to vote against Senator Tydings or a movement to punish them by cutting their appropriations after they had voted for Tydings is too suspicious for this world.

The whole procedure was as pure as a baby's thoughts. And just because things do take on a rather dark aspect at times is no reason for the conclusions that have been flung at the administration.

The President asks the people to have faith and to be loyal. And if they feel that faith and loyalty dribbling away under the incessant pounding of the facts the best thing is to go to a movie, relax the mind and pay no more attention to politics.

ONE SORT OF SENATOR

This is the open season for badgering candidates for office.

The unreasonable extent to which this practice goes is shown by some questions submitted to the three Wisconsin candidates for the senate.

One inquires whether if elected the candidate will vote in the negative "on any and all resolutions introduced in congress designed to inject us into the World war." It doesn't say what world war. It omits a number of other conditions that make a direct answer rather meaningless.

Public opinion in this country has always been at least skeptical of war. Since reviewing the great accomplishments of our victory in the last war it has become adamant in its determination to avoid the field of battle unless it is tendered to us practically on our own soil.

Another favorite question, and also submitted to the same gentlemen, is whether the successful candidate will introduce and sponsor a resolution "demanding that England and France immediately pay up the debt they owe us from the World war without further delay." We suppose that if they pay it "immediately" it will be considered "without further delay," but questioners become heated and emphatic.

There are those, of course, who look upon the halls of congress as suitable places to pose, strut, damn and condemn, and believe a senator who is twisting the lion's tail or pulling hairs out of a Frenchman's beard is doing a great work for his country. They would be slow to appreciate that the best place for such a senator is in a tavern pounding the bar until the glasses danced.

But of course they know that the people generally would like to see the debts paid and would be happy to see our debtors rolling their wealth into our sometimes skinny coffers.

There are certain issues and propositions of an interesting nature upon which candidates can and will be specific and concerning which the voters will pay strict attention but there will be a deluge of questions loosely drawn and carelessly considered that appear to strike at important matters though in fact they are meaningless and often are centered upon some whim or visionary notion of the questioner who thinks he has found a short cut to heaven.

OUR OWN POTSDAM

Mrs. Meta Berger, the widow of Victor Berger, once Socialist congressman, has been cited to appear like a culprit before the executive board of the Socialist County Central Committee at Milwaukee to answer an indictment to the effect that she actually acted counter to party policy in that she advocated collective security as a means toward worldwide peace.

When one belongs to this heathenish outfit he must accept party policy like a child swallows his castor oil. He may make faces and even cry out in the night but it must be in the privacy of his own chamber. If he feels the urge to talk he must run out into the wilderness lest anyone hear him, an almost impossible thing to do for anyone who ever became a Socialist since the desire to talk incessantly to his fellows whether they wanted to hear him or not has always distinguished party members.

And the party overlords after sitting like a Nazi council and suspending or otherwise disciplining those who question the wisdom that comes from out the secret chambers, can actually raise their clinched fists and shake them in fury at those more successful brethren of theirs who head military dictatorships.

A Verse for Today
By Anne Campbell

FINIS

If hearts can break,
Her heart is broken.
Asleep, awake,
That last word spoken
Sounded endlessly
The final knell.
Of hopes that she
Has guarded well.

The wind across
The meadow falters;
The elm trees totter;
The green world alters.
That was his choice.
In every sound
She hears his voice.

Through all the years
Faith was unflinching.
Now when her tears
Prove unavailing
To conquer sorrow,
Time runs clear
To the tomorrow
That brings him near!

Opinions Of Others

WISCONSIN PRIMARY

Three terms of office apparently have not hurt Gov. Phil LaFollette's popularity. The Progressives have renominated him for a fourth term by a 4 to 1 over the candidate of the Milwaukee Socialists and the Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation. These Socialists are old friends of the LaFollettes. The governor's fault in the eyes of the Federation is that he declines to belong to it, having a party of his own. His candidate for senator, Lieutenant Governor

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

(Mr. Harrison, snatching some vacation, is serving as his own "guest columnist" by writing some of the stories out of his newspaper past—Editor).

New York—The slums are passing. Day by day the tenements which have bred disease, plague, poverty and crime are being either destroyed or reconditioned.

Hundreds of them have been razed. In their places stand new, low-cost apartments built so the sunlight and fresh air may enter, and provided with playgrounds and trees and grass and flowers.

The making over of the city's Old-law tenements—60,000 of them, housing a sizeable chunk of the city's population—is doing more than anything else to lift the standard of city life.

It is a long drawn out process, this reconditioning. Fortunes have been spent, other fortunes remain to be spent. Eventually it will be done. The city has finally awakened to the realization that decent, healthful dwellings are not only better but less costly.

Tenements are fire traps. Tenement house fires in New York take an annual toll of 50 lives. A fire will start in an apartment, or the cellar, or in the hallway, and spread through the paper-like walls. Almost before an alarm can be sounded, the entire building is a blazing, crackling torch.

Most tenement fires start at night when families are asleep. Men, women and children are trapped in their beds.

In the citywide reconditioning of tenements they are stymieing fire. They are taking the hall walls and blowing into the hollow spaces between the studs a fireproof mineral wool—a form of spun rock, slag or silica which is widely used for house insulation.

The insulation seals the hall against fire, leaving them open and flame-free so that tenants may leave the buildings in safety.

More than 20,000 tenements are now protected against fire in this manner. A report from the tenement house commissioner's office is that tenement fire deaths have been reduced from 38 in 1934 to 6 last year.

Since the city first began paying attention to the plight of its tenement poor, new laws for their comfort have been enacted. Each apartment now must have a bathroom. Hot water and heat also must be provided. There must be fire escapes serving every apartment; and there must be fire retarding walls.

So pass the slums of old New York.

Almost anything can be arranged in this town if you just know where. There's a department store, for instance, that will deliver anything from a package of aspirin—by truck, no less—to a baby—the baby, of course, only in an emergency. (The store has its own hospital, equipped primarily for first aid but entirely adequate for bringing a Little One into the world if the need should arise.)

There's a company that de-microbes your telephone. There are firms that will walk your dog, give it a marcel, a sun bath or paint and manure its toenails.

Professional mourners are available at so much per hour. Funerals may be had on the installment plan. There is a firm that will fix your glass eye. (It once mended a tortoise shell knitting needle.)

Or perhaps you have to make a speech. There are firms that will record it in wax so you can play it back and see how it sounds. Or if you haven't time or ability to write your own speech, there are professional ghost-writers to do it for you. They'll even write love poems which you can send to your gal as your very own.

If you are ashamed of where you live, you can arrange to get your mail at spiffy addresses on Park avenue. If you like to get lots of mail, there are companies that will be glad to arrange that, too—although most of the mail will be circulars and I hope you don't mind.

If you are a lady from out of town and think it would be nice to have a handsome gentleman escort you around, that can be arranged, too; but please don't write and ask me how. Just inquire when you get here. The Escort Service business is quite an institution now. There are even lovely ladies who can be hired as dinner and theater companions provided the gentlemen seeking them can provide substantial credentials.

And if you are worried about things, there are paid "listeners" who will let you pour out your sorrows and problems on their shoulders for so much per hour; and at the end they will give you advice—take it or leave it.

Looking Backward
10 YEARS AGO
Monday, Oct. 1, 1928

George H. Beckley, secretary of the Appleton Building and Loan association, was elected second vice president of the Wisconsin League of Building and Loan associations at the closing session of the thirty-second annual convention at Wisconsin Rapids the previous week.

The civil service commission Monday certified Albert C. Rule, Herman J. Franck and Emery A. Greunke as eligible for the post-mastership at Appleton.

Members of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity were to move from 202 N. Lawrence street to their new residence at 122 N. Union street that week. The fraternity sold its old house and was to rent the Dr. L. H. Moore residence.

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, Oct. 6, 1913

The Franklin School club was to hold its first meeting of the season at the Franklin school Wednesday evening. A musical program had been arranged and Prof. Frank Young was to give a talk.

The Rebekah lodge was to present a home talent play, "Mr. Bob," at Odd Fellows hall Oct. 14. It was to be staged under the direction of Prof. Orr of the Lawrence School of Expression.

Ekern, a familiar Progressive figure, defeated Representative Amiel, a more progressive Progressive, who has been third-partying for some years.

In the hope of forming a united opposition to the governor, the coalition committee of conservative Democrats and Republicans put a full state ticket on both Republican and Democrat ballots. Former State Treasurer Robert Henry, Democrat, ran for both nominations for governor. Under the state law he would have had to give up one if he won both. It seems a queer arrangement. Anyway, it failed. He won the Democratic and lost the Republican nomination, which went to a Milwaukee manufacturer, Mr. Julius Heil. Half a dozen Republicans sought to be named senator. The prize, if it is one, went to Mr. Alexander Wiley, Republican nominee for governor in '36.

A Bystander .
In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington—It doesn't really matter much to us but a general European war would mess up the Washington social business.

With a couple of common-law wars already in progress a lady who wants to get along has to keep her mind on her place cards. What, then, would be the case if a half dozen nations were having it out toe to toe?

It is fairly easy to avoid seating Ambassador Cheng-tung T. Wang of China next to Mrs. Saito, or Ambassador Saito of Japan next to something pretty from the Russian Embassy. But if you multiply the difficulties by adding a half dozen European nations, all the coal in Pennsylvania could not thaw out the official chill.

Pity The Hemstitchers

We went to the White House to see about these things, because the White House each year has the first go at the diplomatic corps, with a reception about Christmas time. We got an inside tip that if a really good-sized war came off the diplomatic dinner and reception likely would be cancelled. If that happened, it would start such a flood of party cancellations that flocks of fancy dress shops would be sent to the showers.

Yet all these reports of icy greetings between belligerent diplomats should be taken with a dash of sherry. Naturally Ambassador Fernando de los Rios of Spain isn't sending any choice bottles of sparkling Madeira around to the German embassy, nor does Saito invite Wang out to split a bottle of sake on a cool evening. But these two oriental diplomats accidentally met face to face at a White House party and exchanged seasonal greetings while their brothers were blasting sazes out of each other along the Yangtze. Diplomatic blood doesn't run very hot.

Democracy Captures Castle

Democracy note: A turreted society castle out on Sixteenth street, once the haven of the high, has lately been split up into penny-ante housekeeping apartments. Guv'ment stenographers wait for the bus at the entrance to a driveway that once wouldn't admit an automobile less than a half block long unless it carried a gilt coat of arms. In olden days callers in top hats drove up the palm-bordered driveway to call for the lady fair. Now the lads make a down payment on a clatter-car, drive up to the doorway and honk.

Political democracy has been ascendant for five years and more, but the main reception hall of the White House is still strictly Republican and will remain so for several years. The portraits now hanging there are of President Harding and Coolidge. The last congress appropriated money for a portrait of Hoover and when finished it will replace Harding, who will be sent to obscurity along with Jefferson and Taft. Not until President Roosevelt finishes his term, if custom is followed, will his picture be hung up. Then Coolidge will be sent to the rear, leaving Hoover and Roosevelt staring benignly across the hallway.

Democracy Note 2—During the morning hours of each day the Roosevelt must do their entertaining upstairs in the White House as by practice tourists have right of way until about 1 p. m. Then the visiting tourists are shut out and Mrs. Roosevelt has callers for tea and the like.

Only rarely does she interrupt the stream of tourists to make use of the famed floor (blue room, green room, etc.) before lunch.

Your Birthday
"LIBRA"

If October 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m.; from 1 to 3 p. m., and from 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m.; from 5 to 7 p. m., and from 9 to 11 p. m.

Through some prevailing condition, unusual event or strange circumstance, your imaginations may be greatly stimulated this day. Be careful how you allow notions to beset you, for they may lead to wrong conceptions regarding the attitude of friends and relatives. This ought to be a good day for inspirational or creative work. Any temptation to be tyrannical or to take the law into your own hands, must be resisted, for yielding to it will only lead you into trouble. Any disregard of personal rights or fixed rules will be very poor judgment. You must remember it is impossible for you to be in two places at once, so in making decisions, arguments allow yourself plenty of time. Prices for merchandise are likely to be very flexible, so the wise buyer must be cautious. Flattery is apt to be a poor medium to use in trying to ingratiate yourself in anyone's good graces this day. Married and engaged couples, and those seeking a life-partner, should not express uncomplimentary remarks too freely, for there is danger that a good deal of dissension will spoil your day.

If a woman and October 4 is your birthday, you must either learn to control your temper or it will master you. You may be fond of doing mental gymnastics in finding solutions for knotty problems. You do not, apparently, like being left to your own devices, so need companionable company to be completely happy. You may judge people too much by external appearances; seek therefore to discover their real worth before seeking their friendship. As a musician, model, designer, artist, actress, newspaper woman, sales agent or specialty shop manager you might become an outstanding success. Your opportunities for happiness as a married woman appear to be unlimited.

The child born on October 4 is frequently governed by impulses, likes and dislikes. Having an independent nature, it will be much easier to persuade than to force this youngster to do things. Children born on this date are generally mentally and physically well equipped to cope with any difficulties that might confront them in the furthering of their ambitions.

If a man and October 4 is your natal day, your sense of humor should help you greatly in both social and business activities. Keenly sensitive to criticism, your feelings are too easily hurt. Through geology, biology, chemistry, dentistry, acting, writing, preaching or manufacturing you may find a way that will lead you to a fortune.

INFECTIOUS, COMMUNICABLE OR CONTAGIOUS?

In the gay nineties shotgun quarantine was still practiced in the south when an outbreak of yellow fever occurred. Since that time the absurdity of that practice has been recognized universally and the success of any quarantine against "yellow jack" depends entirely, as we now know, upon the efficiency of the means employed to prevent the carriers, mosquitoes, from gaining access to the patient ill of the disease.

Formerly doctors and laymen alike believed yellow fever was contagious, spread thru personal contact with one ill of the disease or by articles contaminated by the patient, or by persons who had been closely associated with the patient at any time in the course of the illness. Hence the shotgun quarantine. Today we know, thanks to Drs. Agramonte, Lazzar, Carroll and Reed, that yellow fever is conveyed only by the agency of the mosquito and cannot be communicated by contagion or by clothing or things that have been used by a yellow fever patient. We know, too, that the virus of the disease is carried in the body of the Stegomyia fasciata—the female of the species—if the mosquito has taken a drink of the patient's blood during the first three or four days of the fever. The Stegomyia mosquito is sometimes called Aedes aegypti. After the mosquito has bitten the yellow fever patient a period of three weeks, more or less, elapses before the mosquito is able to inoculate another person. But once the mosquito herself has taken a drink of yellow jack, she remains a menace to human life for the rest of her career, which may be nearly a year. Indeed, by successive bites she may inoculate a whole series of persons in quick succession—a fact which indicates how futile was the concept of the prevention of epidemics, or ideas founded on the same sort of ignorance, animates many of our "sanitary" regulations and practices today.

Infection primarily implies contamination. The word means to dip into, to stain, to taint with morbid matter. So in general infectious diseases include malaria, yellow fever, typhoid fever, tuberculosis, measles, diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, erysipelas, whooping cough, undulant fever, infantile paralysis, influenza, scabies (the itch), epidermophytosis (foot itch), etc., as well as many other ailments which are but slightly if at all communicable.

What the layman, to his cost and sorrow, conceives as infection is not at all what the pathologist calls infection. In the mind of the physician or pathologist infection necessarily implies invasion of body tissues by the germs. That is quite different from mere presence of germs on the surface of the mucous membrane lining a body cavity, or on the surface of the skin. One important practical difference is that antiseptic, germicidal or disinfectant remedies may retard growth of or even destroy germs on the surface—if that does the individual any good—but no such agent can appreciably influence germs that have invaded the body tissues without at the same time too greatly injuring the tissues, and it is only the germs that have already invaded body tissues that can possibly be responsible for the illness or disease in any case. This may make it clearer why boric acid and mild tincture of iodine are the only antiseptics I, Dr. Brady, admit to The Medicine Cupboard.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Salmon

We are very fond of canned salmon served in different ways. Can you tell me whether it is good food for adults and children. If it is good wholesome food it seems to be a blessing for poor folks. (Mrs. L. S. M.)

Answer—It is excellent food for any one. U. S. Public Health Service recommends it as a good preventive against pellagra, hard-times disease formerly confined largely to the poor folk in the south, now occurring widely throughout the country. Canned salmon, moreover, contains considerable vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, which so many people, even well to do people, fail to get in sufficient quantity. Finally, canned salmon is an excellent source of food iodine and hence may be especially valuable for preventing goiter in young persons.

Keep Your Hair On
Saw something about an iodine ration you recommend to stop hair from falling and turning grey prematurely. (Mrs. H. W. R.)

Answer—Take a drop or two of mild tincture of iodine in some water daily for a month in each of the four seasons of the year, or once or twice a week the year around. For further instructions send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on "Iodine Ration."

LUCKY TRIO GETS LIMIT AS DUCK SEASON OPENS

New London—Every sportsman who could get away was out after ducks in this region Saturday and Sunday but not many were lucky enough to bag the limit like these three, Dave Vandever, his 13-year-old son Bob, and Harry Young of New London. They are shown with the 30 mallards they got, 17 of them green-head drakes. In an isolated wooded section several miles north of New London, Vandever said he stumbled onto the hidden haven of hundreds of the birds on Saturday morning and after taking his limit returned Sunday. All were young native birds. Hunters on the open lake or river averaged two or three ducks while those in the flooded wooded areas invariably got close to the limit. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Waupaca Post Office Bids Will be Opened on Oct. 28

Waupaca—Cooperation of Waupaca civic groups in their efforts to get a new post office building is resulting in realization of their hopes, for last week Postmaster James Carew received word from Washington that the post office department procurement division is asking for bids for the new building.

The site of the $39,000 building is the Mrs. Amy Roberts property on the corner of Main and Badger streets purchased several months ago by the government for $5,000. The property has a frontage of 132 feet, is 264 feet deep and is in the heart of Waupaca's business district, about one block from the present post office.

Contractors may get their sets of drawings and specifications now. Postmaster Carew said, for use in submitting figures for the bids which will be opened Oct. 28 at Washington. The total appropriation of $39,000 covers everything, location, survey, building and equipment, the building itself to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. Survey of the lot has been made by Construction Engineer S. Wainmolls of Wausau.

At present the post office is located in the A. M. Penney building on Main street, which has been leased for the last 46 years and the next two years. The drive to obtain more adequate quarters has been in progress for several years, backed by the Lions club, the chamber of commerce, the junior chamber of commerce and the American Legion.

It is virtually certain that the new federal building will relieve an overcrowded courthouse, with offices of the federal bureau of markets; county agent's office which at present takes two or three rooms in the courthouse and employs a staff of half a dozen; the office of state supervisor of crop and seed loans under the farm credit administration and the office of the farm security administration.

LIFE MAGAZINE

Has THIS To SAY About HOME BUILDING

"Entirely aside from the 'ill-housed third of the nation' who can not afford to live in decent houses, there are hundreds of thousands of renters who could afford to build homes of their own, hundreds of thousands of owners who could afford to build better houses than they now have. BUT THEY DO NOT KNOW HOW EASY IT NOW IS TO FINANCE THE BUILDING OF A HOME. In their newspapers they read complaints of high costs of building materials and labor. But they are not told that BUILDING COSTS OF 1938 AVERAGE A GOOD 10% LESS THAN THOSE OF THE GREAT 'NORMAL' YEAR OF 1926. And people do not realize that progress in technology and design since 1926 has made the 1938-model house, as well as the 1938-model automobile not only cheaper but also far better than the 1926 model."

(Reproduced by Special Permission from Life Magazine to W. J. Durham Lbr. Co.)

The above paragraph appears on the opening page (45) of a twenty-three page Housing section, Life Magazine, issue of Sept. 26, 1938. We have secured special permission to reproduce this paragraph because it carries a message of vital importance to every individual and family contemplating the building of a home NOW or in the near future.

The emphasis (which is our own) placed on the statements pertaining to the comparative costs of home building at the present time as compared with the year 1926, a "normal" year, brings out emphatically a point which we have repeatedly tried to bring home to home builders in the Valley Area—that —

"DURHAM" CAN BUILD YOU A BETTER, MORE MODERN AND CONVENIENT HOME, AT LESS MONEY TODAY, than in the normal years which must be taken as a standard of comparison. SO BUILD NOW WHILE SAVINGS ARE POSSIBLE

Faulty Play Usual Cause Of Failure

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Of all the contracts that most defeat, the greatest proportion fails, not because too many tricks have been bid, but because the declarer does not get the limit out of his resources. In other words, the average pair's bidding is considerably better than its play. Undoubtedly, many good contracts fail because of bad breaks, but countless safety plays have been devised or discovered to circumvent these bad breaks. It cannot be claimed that safety plays cover all conceivable occasions, but it is a fact that the player who knows all about them enjoys an appreciable advantage. Today's hand illustrates a very simple type of safety play which, unfortunately, is not always observed.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ 7 5 2	♥ 8 5 4	♠ 10 9 8 3	♥ K 8 4

♠ 10 9 8 3	♥ A 7	♦ J 8 5 2	♣ 10 7 3

The bidding:
South West North East
♠ 1 spades Pass 2 no trump Pass
♥ 2 spades Pass 4 spades Pass
Pass Pass

West opened the heart queen, and declarer won with the ace. It was immediately apparent that the contract was safe unless declarer would encounter a very bad trump break. At a normal break he would have to lose only one spade, one heart, and one diamond. Perhaps the declarer was lulled into a false sense of security, and then again perhaps he did not know how to guard against the possibility of a bad break. At any rate he laid down the ace and king of trumps and was thoroughly disgusted to find that East had started with four trumps to the queen-jack and now had two aces trump tricks. The other losers were inevitable and the sound contract was down one.

This is one of the most standard of all situations. Hence, consideration of the proper method of drawing trumps will repay readers. Declarer should guard against the possibility of a bad break (which is by no means unusual) by laying down one high honor from his laying down for the club king to lead a second trump toward the remaining high honor. If the lay of cards is as it was in this particular case, this maneuver is bound to hold the defense to one trick. On the second trump lead from dummy, if East splits his honors, putting in the ace, declarer wins with the king, and returns the ten spot, subsequently picking up East's last trump by playing the nine. If, on the lead from dummy, East ducks, declarer should put in the nine, not the other high honor. The reasoning is just this: (a) If the outstanding trumps should split 3-2, this method or any method will lose only one trump trick, which declarer can well afford. (b) If West, on declarer's left, holds four trumps to the queen-jack, there is nothing to be done about it. (c) If East, on declarer's right, "under the gun," holds four trumps to the queen-jack, he can be held to one trick by the prescribed method. Since the method cannot lose in any case, and can gain in one out of three possibilities, it is only logical to use it. To be defeated in such a contract as this is not only expensive, but ignominious.

My Neighbor Says—
If you plan to force bulbs in the house so as to have a plentiful supply of flowers all winter, don't forget the necessity of getting a good root growth of the plant. That is the whole secret of having flowers in plenty. After you get your bulbs, tulips, and narcissus, a bury the pots under a pile of ashes in the cellar. When you dig them up, look at the holes in the bottom, and if you can see little holes, the roots will be taken up. There is an exception in the case of Freesia and Oxalis. They do not need to be buried, but it is best to keep them in a rather cool place at first. Nothing adds more cheerfulness to a room in mid-winter than blooming bulbs.

When soldering first paste a piece of adhesive tape over the hole inside the receptacle that is to be repaired. The tape will hold the solder in place.

Parents Should Guide Youngster's Reading

BY ANGELO PATRI
Once children have learned to read they fill in their odd minutes reading whatever comes to hand, and often what they find is empty, or uninteresting, or downright harmful. The adolescent young person, who is a senior in high school or a college entrant, finds enough good reading for his needs because he can use whatever material the adults leave about. It is the in-between group, the junior high school group, the high school freshman who needs good reading.

It is not easy to provide this because the youngster's tastes are unformed, his appetite for excitement sharp, his power of selection very limited. The books in the library are not always those he wants, and the books he owns are few in number and come rarely. Sprinkled through the year as Christmas and birthday presents, special gifts for special occasions, they do not reach far. That leaves the younger readers with the odds and ends of papers, the funnies, the joke papers, an occasional magazine.

The magazine is usually suited to the older readers. The material is beyond him in vocabulary, in style, in content. It is usually outside his experiences. The story, when there is one, is not the simple wholesome tale of adventure and struggle akin to his own experiences, but the overdone movie sort of thing that excites without nourishing him in any way.

Now and then we find a good magazine suited to these children, and when we do we ought to get it for their daily reading. It ought to be of handy size, for the children read it on the bus, the train, in between games or lessons. The print ought to be very clear because it is read under trying circumstances. The paper ought to be the sort that lends itself to good ink and sharp print because these children's eyes are already sorely tried.

But the inside of the book is more important than all else. For these youngsters the story is the thing. Now the story need not always be fiction. These children are interested in the news of the world. They like to know what is going on abroad. Who does what and who says which, is as important to Sixteen Years as to Twenty. They like to read about people. The men and women who are the headlines of the sports world are their heroes. They like jokes and conundrums, riddles and puzzles, if they are not overdone. They are fed up with tests, having enough of them in school, but they are not averse to paragraphs of general information.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is a case of major interest to all wives and prospective brides. Be sure to read Myrtle's problem and avoid making her mistake. Happy marriages can be insured by a little research before the wedding.

CASE L-131: Myrtle G., aged 31, is a vivacious blonde wife. "But my life is absolutely miserable," she broke into tears. "My husband is cruel. He beats me and takes all my money. Then he goes away for days at a time, only returning when he is broke. I've been married three times. The first husband I divorced. The second one died, and then I says she thought he would reform. That is what we call rationalization. Actually, she wanted sexual stimulation, so she let her sexual desire overrule her brain.

Don't Permit Mistake
Your brain is the captain, while stomach, heart, intestines, etc. are the crew. Never permit mistaking to occur. Don't become a slave to tempting foodstuffs so you become a waddling hippopotamus. Don't become a hypochondriac, fearful over the state of your bowels or your kidneys, etc. Don't become a slave to your heart and marry a fellow like Myrtle's husband.

Use your head. Pick a mate wisely. You can then find just as much thrill and romance as with a ner-do-well. You will not lose any of the joy of life, but will save yourself much needless unhappiness.

Men and women are pretty well "set" by the time they are 21. They seldom make radical changes in personality after that date. If they are addicted to liquor or can't hold a job, or have a suspicious nature, then don't marry them. Pick mates who have desirable habits already established. And don't marry anybody on 48-hours acquaintance. Visit the prospective in-laws. Use at least as much intelligent analysis as you would in buying an automobile.

Boredom Often Cause Of Marriage Failure

BY DOROTHY DIX

Considering that most men and women are neither blind nor imbecile, and that they must have had at least a passing acquaintance with each other before they married, it is a strange thing that they do not discover, on the safe side of the altar, the defects in each other that they find so unendurable after they are tied tight and fast together.

Apparently during the days of courtship they go about in a trance in which they are mentally irresponsible and unable to distinguish between what characteristics they like and don't like in an individual, or to perceive faults and foibles that stick out like a sore thumb. For in no other way can you account for the antagonistic husbands and wives that you see all about you.

It isn't that they were lured into matrimony by deep dark deceptions practiced by villains who pretended to be one thing when they were another. Few men and women could put on an act that would fool even a child. It is necessary to attempt it, because a little bit of all right just as they are, and that to pretend to virtues that they do not possess would be like gilding the lily and painting the rose.

Such being the case, how is it then that Algeron and Gertrude do not discover before marriage those qualities in each other that most get upon their nerves after marriage? For example, I get thousands of letters from both husbands and wives complaining of each other's table manners and saying that every meal is made a horror to them by the way their mates gobble their food or handle their silver.

"When my wife begins gorging her soup I hardly dare trust myself with the carving knife," says the man. "It is all I can do to keep from screaming when I see my husband mess an egg around his plate of a morning," says the woman. You can't wonder at it, poor souls. It is a disillusioning experience, but they must have eaten together on some occasion before they married.

How come that the finicky one didn't find out then that the other's table manners belonged to the pigsty instead of the Emily Post school?

And there's stupidity. The curse of marriage is boredom. The thing that sets nine men out of ten to roaming is having homes so dull that they would yawn their heads off if they stayed in them. The thing that makes wives fall for any stranger who has a keen line is having husbands who never read anything but the stock market and the comic strip and have nothing to talk about except the grocery trade.

You can't blame 'em. But how was it possible for an intelligent man to spend hours, days, weeks in the company of a Dumb Dora without finding out that she had no more brains than a chicken? How was it possible that a clever woman didn't realize that Algeron never said "I love you"?

Funny thing, isn't it, how little men and women seem to know about each other before marriage and how much afterward?

OTILLIE WILLS, beautiful American heiress.
RENE GEISS, head of a murder conspiracy.

YESTERDAY: Breaking into Geiss's house to look for the murder gun I find Otillie already there. Geiss is at home.

CHAPTER 37
STRANGE VISITORS
"What, in the name of all that's holy, induced you to come here?" I demanded. "Haven't you learned enough by this time to keep out of my table?"

Even in the half-light I could see the flash of anger in her dark eyes. "You make me tired," Otillie retorted in a furious whisper. "Cuthbert told me all about how the servants had gone and Geiss was staying with Rakovsky over in Italy, and he said how the one important thing was to find that gun, and, I thought, to myself, if none of us had the gun, then I could look for it, it was about time I got busy myself."

I groaned. "Well," I said, "the one question now is how we can get you safely out of here." But at that instant came a faint but unmistakable sound, the sound of a leisurely tread mounting the marble stairs.

I looked round wildly. The room, as much as I could see of it, was a bedroom and, from the glider, ro-coco splendor of the furnishings, I guessed it to be Geiss's own. It would be madness to conceal the girl there. Then suddenly my eye lighted on the giant cupids that acted as supports to the outer wall of the loggia. Behind their wings I saw a shadow. I caught Otillie by the shoulders, thrust her into the angle of the wall, I had just time to flatten myself against the opposite wall, holding my breath, when suddenly the lights inside the room flashed on, and Geiss himself stood at the threshold.

A moment he paused, hesitating, and I saw that he carried a suitcase in either hand. He opened them, set them up against the foot of the bed, and then, with a sudden idea had struck him, he trod to the window and stood looking out.

For an awful instant I thought that he had seen us, but after a pause he turned to the side of the window, raised his hand, and a metal sun-shutter rattled down, shutting off the room.

I counted ten slowly, then moved, with infinite caution, to the shutter and peered through the slats, and as I did so, with a faint rustle of silk, the girl was beside me. The room inside was clearly visible, and in the middle of it stood its owner, a fantastic figure in yellow shirt and crimson trousers, engaged in the prosaic task of packing.

I soon realized that this was no haphazard preparation for a week-end, for no sooner were the two friends who are not especially near to the guest of honor?

Old Gardener Says:

There are several reasons why forcing bulbs in the house will give excellent results. The fiber seems to provide some nourishment, the danger of drying out is much lessened and there is less likelihood of spilling water on the furniture or carpets. The fiber can be obtained at any seed store. Only a small amount is required. If there are lumps in the fiber, they should be broken up. It is beneficial to add a few pieces of charcoal. After the bowl has been half filled with moistened fiber, the bulbs may be placed in position and enough fiber added to cover the bulbs. However, there should be half an inch between the top of the fiber and the rim of the bowl, to provide for the application of additional water from time to time. Sometimes flower lovers who try to force bulbs in the house, report failure. In most instances they are found to have used too much water. Of course, fiber soaked in the water rapidly, but it should not be allowed to get wringing wet.

He looked at her consideringly, his head on one side. "I am mad, am I?" he echoed, and there was something so indescribably menacing in his tone that I felt the girl beside me shudder. "That is not a very safe thing to say. But let it pass. How much money do you want? Ten thousand francs?"

"The woman sneered in his face. A hundred thousand would be

Mountain Poet Quits Kentucky After He Is Injured While Back Is Turned

Greenup, Ky., (AP)—Jesse Stuart, 31-year-old mountain poet injured in a political argument "while my back was turned," has turned his back on his native state.

The noted author of "Man With a Bull-Tongue Plow," who returned recently from European studies provided for by the Guggenheim Foundation, vowed "I guess I'll just leave the state for good."

An editorial Stuart contributed to the Greenup Citizen brought on the argument—in a local drug store. Stuart claimed, and police court witnesses corroborated his story, that Constable Amos Allen of Argallite, Ky., objected to the editorial, which referred to Representative Joe Bates (D-Ky.) as "the dictator of Greenup county."

The mountaineer poet said he exchanged remarks with Allen, then turned his back and was struck from behind with a blackjack.

"It was the most unfair thing I've ever run across," Stuart said. "I guess I'll just leave the state for good. I got kicked out of the Greenup county school system on account of politics and kicked out of my county on account of politics."

Stuart once was principal of Greenup County High school. He now is an English instructor at Portsmouth, Ohio, high school, a short distance from the Ohio river from here.

He was released from a hospital after treatment of head injuries. Police Judge William Flannagan, Jr., placed Stuart and Allen under $200 bonds on charges of breach of peace pending a hearing.

Canning Time at Senior High School Fills Halls With Appetizing Aromas

Late summer and autumn are canning time—and that is exactly what the girls who have been studying foods at the Appleton High school have been doing for the last week. Examples of their work—appetizing jars of pears, peaches, and tomato juice may be seen in the display cases of the home economics department on the third floor. Just across the hall is an exhibit of the clothing classes, showing examples of shirring, pleating, and tucking which were made with machine attachments.

The two food laboratories at the new high school offer every enticement for work and achievement. Each is equipped with five units, a gleaming black and white stove, a full-sized sink, and a work table whose drawers hold spatulas, knives, wooden mixing spoons, sieves. Honor students are permitted to work in the model kitchenette and dinette adjoining each of the larger rooms.

Just off the laboratories are the lecture rooms whose walls are lined with books. In this way theory and practice are closely united at the new building.

The home management class of Miss Catherine Spence, head of the department, is sewing curtains, hemming dish towels, and making place doilies for the various domestic science rooms. And so the laboratory is giving way to the home, for according to Miss Spence, the major objective of the whole department is to create the ideals of the home. Besides using their needles and thimbles, the girls in this class are studying their own personalities and will soon advance to the problem of family relations.

Course For Boys
One of the outstanding features of Appleton's home science work is its course for boys. In fact, Miss Spence is a pioneer in getting the "fellows" interested in what was once derogatively termed "girl stuff." At present she is instructing two classes of "he-men," more than 60 in all, in the care of the body and nutrition. Soon they will proceed to units on meal planning and clothing. Although the course is entirely elective, there are always more boys wishing to take it than the program schedule permits.

The sewing rooms are comfortable places in which to work, equipped as they are with tables for two and modern sewing machines. Now that the girls have explored the possibilities of the machine, they are beginning study of the commercial pattern. Those enrolled in the beginning and advanced foods classes are learning the importance of nutrition. Miss Spence is assisted by Miss Mildred Nickel, clothing instructor, and Miss Sofia Nicolazzo, foods instructor. Approximately 500 students are enrolled in the various home science classes.

PANNECK CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC

In keeping with the wonderful advancement of modern science, Chiropactic is the new science, maintains that there is a vital force in man, that this force is intelligent and is directly responsible for every action that occurs in the body. It further maintains that the laws of chemistry and physics are utilized by this great intelligence within the body. This great intelligence, known to Chiropactors as innate intelligence or the Universal power is capable of keeping the body in a state of complete health. It was created or organized by the great creator and stands as a Monument of perfection. We attribute no imperfection to this innate intelligence, in a sick body there is as much of it as there is in a healthy body. The intelligence is in the body having its residence in the brain and this is due to a pressure upon the spinal cord or nerve fibers as it leaves the spinal cord or backbone, therefore, this pressure upon the tender nerve fibers by a hard bony structure lessens the carrying capacity of the nerve and thus lessens the expression of life force where the nerve ends which amounts to a state of disease. Human matter is in motion as human energy gets to the human matter. The flow of mental energy between brain and body determines the quantity of function at the periphery or organs. neys to practice and hearing motions. For the next week, however, the eight justices will be busy passing on approximately 350 petitions for review of lower court decisions which have accumulated during the four-month adjournment.

Announcement of the action decided upon will be made next Monday.

At that time arguments also will begin on cases the court agreed last spring to review.

Tom Mooney Case
Among the petitions awaiting action is an appeal by Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life sentence in San Quentin penitentiary for complicity in the 1916 Preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco.

There also are controversies growing out of interpretations of the national labor relations act, including the Ford Motor company case.

Speculation was renewed over when President Roosevelt is likely to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Cardozo. The belief was widespread that he would wait until congress meets next January. The senate must confirm any nomination to be a member of the court.

Six-Man Football Is Introduced Between Halves of Grid Tilt

Menasha — Six-man football was introduced to a Menasha audience between halves of the St. Mary-St. Norbert football game Sunday afternoon at Butte des Morts field. The Orange team defeated the Green team by a 6 to 0 score in the abbreviated game. Sam Kraus coached both squads.

After early play was in the Orange territory, Taves and Kronschnabel made two nice punt returns to enter the Green territory. A pass from Taves to Kronschnabel clicked for 11 yards and on the next play Leonard Schipferling took a lateral pass and went around left end for the only touchdown.

The game is played with six men on a side, center, two ends, quarterback, halfback and fullback. Chief differences from regulation football are that players must make 15 yards in four downs instead of 10; that the players who receive the ball from center cannot run with it but must either pass it forward or laterally and that the players wear tennis shoes instead of cleats.

Players on the Orange team were Leonard Schipferling, Alfred Taves, George Kronschnabel, Ben Kluba, Norbert Bayer and Harold Zimmer. Reserves were Tom Bruhl and Eugene Hoolihan. The Green team included Jim Bretthauer, Donald Ciske, Ray Pozzolini, Jack Grade, Tom Ales, Chester Shiedick and Jerome Magalski, reserve. Officials were David Spalding and Frank Schuerer.

GET "PEACE BONUS" — Wilmington, Del.—A "peace bonus" of $5 each rested in the pockets of a billboard company's employees today.

Polish Falcon Nine Honored at Banquet, Hears Brewer President

Menasha—Although the football season officially is here, baseball talk predominated at the testimonial banquet honoring the Polish Falcons, champions of the Fox River Valley league, which is attended by about 150 baseball officials, members of the Junior Association of Commerce, friends of the Falcons and their wives at St. Mary school hall. The banquet, which was sponsored by the Falcons and the Polish Falcons Athletic association, was served by the St. Mary High school Band Mothers club.

Henry Bendinger, president of the Milwaukee Brewers baseball club, was the main speaker. He stated that professional baseball owed its hold on the public to the integrity of the game and that in his five years connection with the professional game, he could witness that integrity.

"Many ball players have left the game during the years, dissatisfied and disgruntled, but they never say anything against the management. Very few have double-crossed the game," he said.

Speaking to Dave and Herb Kosloski, the two Falcon aces signed by the Brewers at the state amateur baseball tournament in which the Menasha entry won three games, Bendinger urged them not to quit if they believed that they had the necessary skills, even if the club said they could not make the grade. He recalled a "pretty fair country girl" named Hubbel, "who was thrown out of the ball park in Texas many times but who now rates among baseball's great."

Cites Sportsmanship — From his association with baseball, he declared that he would urge any boy who had the ability to go into the sport for a living. The men in the game are of the highest type good sportsmen, and in baseball there is no room for a player even after his arms and legs fall. Another cause of the popularity of the game, according to Bendinger, is the integrity of the umpires. He declared that a speaker was booed down by ball players when he inferred at a convention that umpires are dishonest.

Old timers and present day ball players had their chance at the banquet too. Ray J. Fink, president of the Falcons and toastmaster, introduced Artie Buzanowski, manager of the Falcons team. The manager gave the credit for the team's success to all the players and the way they worked together. He introduced the members of the squad, Herbert Kosloski, Richard Sheleski, John Kolakowski, Syl Omachinski, Tony Konezki, Frank Klobner, who worked with the team in the state tourney, Philip Michalkiewicz, Edward Paulowski, Syl Paulowski, Dave Kosloski, Frank Dombrowski, F. Kolakowski and Badger Naolinski.

Glenn Miller, president of the Fox Valley league, Kaukauna, presented a trophy to the Falcon manager and James D. Howley presented a plaque to the club on behalf of the Falcons. Paul Winarski, president of the Falcons, declared that he was looking towards the future and that as long as the Falcons existed, Menasha would have a hard ball team.

Paul Little, coach at Kaukauna High school, declared that Menasha played baseball in existence. Seven of the men threw left-handed while the other two batted left-handed. He left his left-handed catching mitt at home he said because it was rather moldy.

He recalled past great Menasha teams, including one with Leopold and Joe Muench on it, which lost a 3 to 2 game to the St. Louis Browns at Oshkosh. He declared that the game was lost because the Menasha team was forced to use two major leaguers who struck out seven times instead of their own players. He expressed the wish that the two Kosloski boys might find such success in baseball that their names would rank with other Polish heroes.

John Coppes recalled some of the great Menasha teams under Paul Paikowski and Wally Pierce. Walter Hofer, secretary of the Milwaukee Brewers club declared that he heard that the games Coppes talked about used to go only five or six innings and then broke up in a row. He inferred that Coppes at one time was led off the field by a two-gun sheriff and spent the night in jail as a result of one of those five-inning games.

Harold "Red" Smith, Packer football coach and manager of the Hopkinsville, Ky., baseball team, declared that he was glad to be in Menasha so that he could check up on the two boys who will be playing for him next year. A dance at the Falcons hall followed the banquet.

Old John Bull Grumbles, But U. S. Ideas Spread

Although war scares sent some Americans scurrying home, England is becoming more American every day. William McGuffin tells you about one invasion that isn't worrying the diplomats.

BY WILLIAM MCGUFFIN
London—(AP)—Well-fortified with American chewing gum, young John Bull sets out with Jane for an evening at the movies.

Jane is all dolled up in a guinea ($2.25) frock—"Direct from America, Miss"—which she prefers because it has more style than the cheap English dress.

John is wearing a "Hollywood" shirt named for his favorite movie star—probably Robert Taylor who is more popular than ever since he came over and made "A Yank at Oxford."

It's a double feature program—one American, one English picture. John and Jane don't see a great deal of either, they're so busy indulging in that old American custom of necking at the movies. But both agree that the American film was swell while the English was lousy.

On their way home, John and Jane stop in an American-type milk bar which serves alleged American malted milks.

The American Touch
Boarding their subway train, they thumb through sexy tabloids and larger newspapers with

NOT RAHLLY!
English oldsters, who disapprove of American slang, relate this joke as an example of how thoroughly the younger generation has absorbed those "disgusting American adjectives."

Jane's mother takes her aside and pleads, "Jane, dear, there are two words I don't want you to use. One's 'lousy,' the other is 'swell.'"

"Owkye, mother," replies Jane, "what are they?"

Warrants Issued For Buckman Trio And Former Agent

Certified Copies to be Served at Waupun on Officers of Defunct Firm

Manitowoc—(AP)—Sheriff Norman Berkehal today held warrants for Erwin K. Fanta, former agent of the defunct B. E. Buckman and Company, Madison brokerage firm, and three officials of the company who are serving terms in state prison.

Fanta was reported out of the county the weekend.

President B. E. Buckman, Vice President L. C. George and Secretary E. C. Holt of the company were sentenced in Milwaukee last spring for sale of unregistered stock.

The four men are accused in eight-count warrants charging them with disposing of unregistered securities to six Manitowoc residents.

The warrants were issued by Municipal Judge O. T. Bredeson on complaints filed by Deputy Attorney General L. E. Vandrcul.

Madison—(AP)—Attorney General O. S. Loomis said today that certified copies of warrants naming three Buckman and Company officials in a new blue sky law prosecution have been sent to Waupun prison where they are serving sentences.

The prisoners, B. E. Buckman, L. C. George and E. C. Holt, will not be brought to trial on the new charges at this time unless they demand it, Loomis said.

The charges involve the alleged sale of unregistered securities in Manitowoc county. Buckman, George and Holt were found guilty of selling unregistered stock in Milwaukee county.

The attorney general asserted that filing of warrants in the Manitowoc county case will prevent the prisoners being paroled before serving their full terms.

Buckman and George were sentenced to 1 to 3 years and Holt was sentenced to a term of 1 to 1 1/2 years. They started serving sentences last spring.

Number of Relief Cases Continue to Decline in State

General Load Higher Than Last Year Despite Downward Trend

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Reflecting a downward trend for the whole state, the public welfare department today reported figures showing that the number of cases receiving general relief in the Appleton area counties declined for the sixth successive month during August.

It was pointed out, however, that a large share of the decline in relief loads in the state can be attributed to a broadening of the WPA and other works programs in the state.

"Despite consistent reductions during the past spring and summer, the general relief load was 40.2 per cent higher this August than one year ago," the department said.

Brighter Outlook
However, experts observed, the general outlook is brighter, with Wisconsin manufacturing industries increasing their employment in recent weeks for the first time in a year. Relief rolls do not immediately reflect industrial improvements.

It was explained, because early increase in factory payrolls generally show first a return to full-time employment of workers already on the payroll. Another factor is that 36 per cent of the present number of relief families contain no employable member.

Figures showing relief loads in the northeastern Wisconsin counties together with the percentage of change in August from July, as reported by the public welfare department:

Brown	696	-1.1
Calumet	52	x4.0
Manitowoc	493	-11.5
Outagamie	453	-10.5
Shawano	244	-14.1
Waupaca	314	x10.2
Winnebago	784	-5.1

Babson Predicts U. S. Business Will Forge Ahead

Looks for Boom Now That European War Hurdle Is Out of Way

London, England—Roger Babson, in Europe to investigate business and war conditions, believes that the passing of the war crisis means that the recent barrier has been removed and that the long awaited business boom will now start. He said the latest turn of events justified his advice of the late summer to business men to forget Europe and other sensational headlines and to pay more attention to their own jobs.

Business in the United States, Babson continued, is 10 per cent above the low in June. This gain has come about in the face of the most depressing headlines. The purge, the war threat, and business men's pessimism have failed to halt the upturn.

Should Rise Steadily
With the war hurdle out of the way, American business should now rise steadily. Babson predicted that business activity will top the year-ago level sometime between now and Christmas. He reports that there is great joy in London and that business has already picked up over there.

Commodity prices were kept down by fear that the government would fix prices. All such fear, he says, has now been removed so that business can go on as usual. Improvement in business in England and the continent further brightens prospects in the United States.

American Labor Party Convenes in New York

New York—(AP)—The American Labor party, opening its two-day state convention, adopted a platform today affirming the party's faith in President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

The platform held that the A. L. P. had become the spearhead "of the movement which will inevitably lead to a breakup of the old parties and their replacement by two parties fundamentally opposed to each other—one dedicated to economic and political democracy, the other representing reaction and special privilege."

Gunmen Arrive Hour Too Late to Hold Up Station

Chicago—(AP)—Two gunmen entered a filling station and announced a holdup.

"The early bird catches the worm. In other words, I'm fresh out of cash," replied Philip Zitek, the attendant. He added that a lone gunman had robbed him an hour previously. The late comers left grumbling.

Movie Land Is People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—Idol Chatter; When Carole Lombard loses her temper (fortunately, she seldom does) I always think of Kipling's immortal line about the female of the species.

Look alikes: Joan Bennett, in a black wig, and Hedy Lamarr. "This wild pheasant" that highlights the RKO cafe's menu are grown on Victor McLaglen's La Canada ranch. Ode to coincidence: Judith Barrett, the shapeliest beauty on the Paramount lot, was born in Venus, Texas. Bill Powell has never lost that brooding expression since John Harlow died.

Odd that Mary Pickford, the one star who seldom wore street make-up, should wind up in the cosmetic business. Barry Norton must have filed a claim on the fountain of youth—he doesn't look a day older than when he played the famous "mother's boy" scene in "The Big Parade." Come to think of it, I don't believe I've ever seen Charles Boyer indulge in an off-screen smile.

Wish I could remember to ask Warner Baxter for his chili con carne recipe—its tops.

If anyone has a pair of condor wings for sale, he should contact M-G-M; they're trying to outfit the flying monkeys for "The Wizard of Oz." In a-line description of Stan Laurel: Puck in a fright wig. Marie Wilson is a confirmed sinner-downer, but she is always as breathless as though she had just finished a marathon run. Hollywood maxims: The bigger they are—the more the masseuse has to pound off.

The sound mixer on the "Zaza" set at Paramount is one of Hollywood's most noted martinetes. Perched, hawk-like, behind his intricate instrument board, headphones glued to his ears, he thunders like an avenging Jove if anyone makes an uncalculated sound. A shuffling foot, a side-line whisper—or, worst of all, a cough—and the floodgates of his wrath are instantly opened.

Today, when I stopped on the set for a moment's chat with Claudette Colbert, he was in fine fettle. And, then, when Claudette midway through a difficult emotional close-up it happened. Someone emitted a blasting sneeze. We all looked apprehensively at the mixer expecting a roar of rage. Instead — to everyone's delight—he was speechless in red-faced embarrassment. He was the author of the sneeze.

Speaking of sneezes, I don't like to be a creaking prophet of disaster, but Mervyn Douglas should be warned that his latest practical joke is an invitation to homicide. Dipping his hand into a pail of water, he slips up behind his victim, fakes a sneeze and at the same time, flips a shower of water on the fall guy's neck. It's very funny—but it isn't safe.

As little tokens of appreciation for kindness extended them, Florida Legionnaires presented alligators to various members of the film colony. Gloria Stuart was given one, decided that it was not a proper playmate for her three-year-old daughter, and has spent the last week trying to get rid of it. Another gator was presented to Russel Birdwell, a studio publicity director whose office is in Gloria Swanson's old dressing room. He put the reptile in a black onyx bathtub in which Gloria used to cavort—and the poor thing died within thirty-six hours. Birdwell insists that the thrill undoubtedly gave it heart failure.

Had lunch with Nancy Kelly, just back from the "Jesse James" location at Pineville, Mo., and was served a fish story.

MARGARET LINDSAY — looks as if she'd help the California weather to live up to its reputation, for even on one of those rare rainy days — that laugh of hers (see above) might well make a visitor think he was enjoying one of the sunniest days of his young life. The clever Iowa girl who made her way into the movies by way of London — will be starred in the musical "Garden of the Moon."

With Barney sauc. Seems that Nancy and Randolph Scott went fishing in the river near Pineville. Randy cast, reeled in and brought to shore — not a fish, but a fountain pen. He bowed deeply, and "Miss Kelly," he said, "I think the fish want your autograph."

With a bunch of the lot-workers, I stood this morning outside the music building at the Goldwyn studio, listening to Jascha Heifetz play the violin. We were enthralled by the concert—no one was saying a word. And then, in the middle of a particularly fine passage from the Largo, a little Japanese dancer from the "Trade Winds" set strolled for by—clad in a scanty sarong and a very attractive smile. First one, then another, of the boys looked up, stared, and started to talk—about that curvaceous little dancer. Heifetz could have switched to "A-tisket, a-lasket" and no one would have noted the change. That's Hollywood for you. It's also Timbuctoo.

Wally Ford tells about the momentous developments in the life of a somewhat antiquated leading lady he knows. "Imagine," he says, "she had her option, her purse and her face lifted — all in a single week!"

Pegler Turns Down $500 Bids for Testimonials

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Believe it or not, I once was offered $500 for a testimonial for a brand of safety-razor blades, and at other times have been offered $500 for my endorsement of a brand of gin and the same for a whisky endorsement. That seems to be my rating—$500. Not bad, but not top, either, for some very famous people such as actors, society ladies and athletes, have received as much as $5,000 per endorsement.

In the case of an athlete of national renown that would be a small price for a cigarette or liquor endorsement, because all Americans want to be big and strong and proficient in sports, and they would take such testimony as an indication that smoking and drinking make for athletic prowess, sharpen the eye, develop stamina and all that. It is hard enough to keep children out of the saloons even now.

I turned down all three offers. I turned down the razor-blade offer because it made me feel good to think that I could set so high a price on my dignity.

Something of the same reason figured in my refusal of the gin and whisky propositions, but equally important, if not more so, was the cautious realization that people reading these tributes and then reading my stuff would say "That explains everything" or "cause and effect."

There was another reason, however, just for lagniappe. People sometimes, believe it or not, write me letters, free, expressing approval of my work, and I sort of figure that if I have something nice to say of some body's razor blades, gin or whisky I should say it without charge.

He Finds It Difficult To Tell Gals Apart
I am not telling what razor-blade company it was that offered me the $500, but I do not hesitate to say that I have used the blades for years and have found them very satisfactory. Of course, once in a great while I have come upon a blade that seemed to be somewhat saw-toothed, but I know that trifling slip-ups can occur in any business and gladly state that the blades are real good safety-razor blades.

I have also used others occasionally when I have been overnighting with some friend and have found them all right, too.

As to gin, frankly, I could give no honest testimonial for any particular brand, having no discrimination, although one of

An Appleton Mother of FOUR DAUGHTERS speaks:

It has been my privilege to attend a previous showing of Fannie Hurst's "Four Daughters," a picture so human, so heartwarming, so moving in its sincerity and simplicity that it immediately wins rank beside the screen's immortal achievements.

It is a real story of today and of people close to you and young girls in love and of youth's laughter, dreams and heartbreak. A fitting successor to Fannie Hurst's "Humoresque," "Imitation of Life," and "Back Street."

Once in a blue moon comes a picture where everything seems to click just right. This seems to be it. "Four Daughters" has given me one of my most enjoyable hours in a theatre.

proved the worth of Vicks Plan. Vicks Plan is a simple guide which emphasizes the importance of proper personal care and the use of two specialized medications—Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks VapoRub—for relief of symptoms in different types and stages of colds.

When colds threatened—at the first nasal irritation, sniffle, or sneeze—Vapo-a-trol-no was used to help prevent the development of many colds. When a cold got by all precautions, its discomforts were relieved with VapoRub.

The results speak for themselves. Vicks Plan may do less for you—or it may do even more. But with such a record it certainly is worth a trial. It is simple and easy to follow in any home. You get the full directions in each package of Vapo-a-trol-no or VapoRub.

RELIEVES misery of COLDS

VapoRub is a family standby for relieving misery of colds. Rubbed on throat, chest, and back, VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct on irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. This double action loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, eases cough, relieves local congestion.

The Air Around the Earth
—WEIGHT OF THE AIR—

Now and then we may hear a person say "Just about everything these days costs money, but I'm glad that air is free!"

We could name many things besides the air which are free—the sunrise and the sunset, the songs of birds and other things in the world of Nature—but I agree to the last part of the statement. It is fine to have free air to breathe!

Diagram showing how air gets getting "thinner" high above the earth.

A baby's first cry comes at the time he first breathes air. From then onward the child must have air to fill his lungs. We do not all breathe at the same rate, and the same person changes his rate of breathing at different times or places.

A person who goes to a mountain to spend a vacation takes more breaths per minute than he does in the lowlands. This is because mountain air does not contain so much oxygen as air in the lowlands. More breaths are needed to get the same amount of oxygen.

Faster breathing also takes place when we are running or swimming, or exercising in some other way. During sleep, on the other hand, we breathe more slowly.

Air may seem "so light it has no weight," but it does have weight. Time and again the weight has been measured, in a way which is simple enough. A jar, or container of some other sort is placed on the scales and weighed. Then the air is pumped out, and the container is sealed and weighed again. This time the weight is less.

A cubic foot of air at sea level weighs more than an ounce. The room in which I am writing this story is about 12 feet wide and 13 feet long, and the ceiling is eight feet high. Let's see how much air it contains. The figure I get is 1,248 cubic feet. Since I am about 500 feet above sea level, the air is of slightly lighter weight than at sea level but the total weight is about 81 pounds.

With so much air weight in the air of one rather small room, and with air stretching hundreds of miles above the earth, we might expect great weight for the whole mass of weight. It does, indeed, have great weight. All the air around the earth is estimated to weigh about 60,000,000,000,000 tons! The weight gives us air pressure, and the pressure at sea level is more than 14 and a half pounds to the square inch.

Lawrence Eleven Victor In First Midwest Game

Defeats Coe College of Cedar Rapids, Ia., 6 to 2

CRAWFORD TALLIES Takes Forward Pass From Novakofski in Second Quarter

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
A LAWRENCE college football team which a week ago gave indications of reaching the heights this season proved itself here Saturday afternoon when it defeated Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., 6 to 2, in a Midwest conference game. It was Lawrence's first win over the Kohawks in the few seasons the schools have met and stamped the Vikes as something of a contender for Midwest honors.

The average spectator probably figured the Vikes looked good on the basis of their ground gaining and because they scored a touchdown. But we'll take them because of a gallant stand within their seven yard line in the third quarter, a stand where a lot of ball teams would have folded up.

The situation arose when Albert Novakofski let a Coe punt roll toward the end zone. But a football bounds crazily and this trip it suddenly halted its progress. Obbie attempted to grab it on the run, touched it and saw it squirt away with Coe recovering on the seven yard line—seven yards to a touchdown and a tie or a win for the Kohawks.

Hold On 1-Yard Line

The first play was a smash at center and the Vikes piled up high and wide but Coe gained two yards. Another smash followed and another two yards were chopped off and finally another charge and two more yards, in other words, one yard to go for a marker. The Kohawks lined up, shifted to the right and the ball was snapped. But the right side of that Vike line had gotten off a fraction of a second ahead of the enemy, met the ball carrier in his own backyard and despite his drive hauled him down for no gain. And it was Lawrence's ball.

That was the standout performance of the game but doesn't mean there weren't others. Every one of the 13 Vikes who took part was a standout at some time or other. They followed the ball like hawks and as a result they recovered several Coe fumbles; they tackled hard and cleanly and they spilled interference with finesse; and nine of them played 60 minutes of ball, 60 minutes in temperature a trifle too high for their best efforts, 60 minutes of proof that physically they were in top form despite some three weeks of the hardest work.

To Jack Crawford, veteran end, goes the credit for the Viking touchdown. He counted it in the second quarter when he took a forward pass from Novakofski without a hitch in his stride and then sped on to the goal with hardly a hand laid on him. The toss was 25 yards, the run 20 and the timeliness of the play perfect for Coe backs all had been sucked in to stop the Vike running attack and were completely trapped. Crawford then attempted to boot a place kick which was wide by inches.

Coe Points Gift

Coe's two points were a gift, a personal gift from Coach Bernie Heston. After the terrific goal line stand made by Lawrence, the Vikes took time out, pushed their headguards on the back of their heads and perhaps cursed at their success. But the problem of getting the ball out of the coffin corner still remained.

No doubt they thought of punting, perhaps they thought of a run or a pass off a punt formation. But suddenly Don Weidman appeared on the field as a substitute and with orders from Heston. The Vikes lineup as if to punt with Novakofski back. The ball was snapped and Obbie took it in his hands, backed up two steps and out of the end zone and the referee's whistle blew with the announcement Coe had two points on a safety. The ball then went out to the 20 where Lawrence was forced to kick-off to the invaders and out of danger.

The play left the spectators rather stunned; they hadn't expected it, and then a few began to second guess. The Vike margin wasn't much, and if Coe should score with

Ripon Is Stopped By Knox College

Redmen Scored on in First Four Minutes of Contest

Ripon — Knox college defeated Ripon, 7 to 0, in a Midwest conference game here Saturday. Knox scored in the first four minutes on a march from Ripon's 37 yard line. Christiansen went around right end from the one yard line for the touchdown. McGrew place kicked the extra point.

The visitors failed to penetrate scoring territory during the rest of the game, but they took the best twice on downs to halt Ripon's best threats. The Red Men got inside the 20 yard line in the first period, mainly through Kremer's passes. In the third quarter Ripon pushed from midfield to the five, and lost the ball when Knox braced.

Both teams, liberally sprinkled with sophomores, lacked punch. Ripon had the edge on downs, collecting five from passes and one from a penalty. Knox earned three from scrimmage. The victors threw no passes. Ripon completed five.

Wisconsin Shows Reserve Strength In Opening Battle

Begin Heavy Drills for Iowa After Win Over Marquette

MADISON —(P)—Encouraged by its 27 to 0 victory over Marquette university Saturday, Harry Stuhldreher's University of Wisconsin football team dug in for a week of grueling work in preparation for the Iowa game at Iowa City next Saturday.

Strong reserve strength had much to do with the Badger victory Saturday. At the start of each quarter Stuhldreher shot in his reserve corps and they performed in smooth fashion. A crowd of 27,876 spectators watched the season's opener for both teams.

Wisconsin overshadowed the Golden Avalanche in nearly every department of the game. Roy Belin, Whitefish Bay halfback was the first to cross the Hilltop goal, scoring in the second half. He drove through right tackle from the five yard marker after Lynn Hovland, Bloomer guard, recovered a Marquette fumble on the Avalanche's 30. Hovland converted the extra point.

Concerted Drive

A concerted drive downfield which started when Bill Schmitz, Madison halfback, took a Marquette punt on the Badger 45 and raced to the Avalanche 13, led to the next score. Line plunges by reserve fullback Paskvan and a pass from Anthony Gradinski to Ed Wegner, second string end, placed the ball close to the pay zone.

The first stringers were inserted and fullback Howie Weiss, of Fort Atkinson crashed over for the second tally from the four yard stripe. Hovland's extra point boot was wide.

A recovered fumble in the closing seconds of the third quarter opened the way for the third Badger counter. Ralph Moeller, Watertown end, recovered Harry Leysenaar's fumble and on the very first play of the final quarter, Paskvan punched over for the touchdown. Ed Hartman, Pottsville, Pa., reserve quarterback, converted.

Immediately thereafter Stuhldreher sent in his shock troops and John Tennant, halfback, raced through the line for a 17 yard counter—Wisconsin's final. Hartman's kick again was good.

The statistics of the game clearly show the superiority of the Badger eleven. They garnered 14 first downs to Marquette's five, piling up 280 yards from scrimmage as compared with Marquette's 108. The only advantage ceded to the Avalanche was on forward passes—they reeled off 87 yards to Wisconsin's 24.

Outstanding for the Badgers were Weiss, Belin, Schmitz, Vince Gavre, and Paskvan in the backfield, and Gordon Gile, Bob Eckl, Hovland, Jack Murray, Bob Hailoway, John O'Brien, Eugene Brodhagen and Al Lorenz in the forward wall.

For the Hilltoppers, Maltch, Leysenaar were best in the backfield while Apolskis, Siefert, Busler and Nicmi did best in the front lines.

Stuhldreher announced yesterday that Al Dorsch, 220 pound regular tackle last year would report for drill today. Dorsch had decided to forego the gridiron to enable him to concentrate on his studies, but he told Stuhldreher he would be in uniform today, after witnessing Saturday's contest from the stands.

LAWRENCE COUNTS 6-2 WIN OVER COE IN MIDWEST PLAY

Lawrence college football team tripped Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., here Saturday afternoon in a Midwest conference game that thrilled. Above are two shots of the action. In the top picture Obbie Novakofski, No. 16, is fighting his way through a host of Coe players and one, No. 27, Cislser, seems to be poking his finger at Obbie's face. No. 35 is Coe's big center, Norris, who is squashing an unidentified Viking. In the lower picture Ken Buesing, No. 10, is coming through with Novakofski, No. 16, looking for the next Coe man. Hartnett Is Hero and Workhorse of Baseball

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
CHICAGO —(P)—Getting a line on Charles Leo Hartnett, proud manager of the conquering Chicago Cubs and baseball hero to millions:

The big, red-faced "Gabby" Hartnett is the work horse of baseball and without a doubt its most popular figure. . . . He has had a remarkable career of 17 years with the Cubs working at the hardest job on the team—catching. . . . One of the reasons for Hartnett's great popularity is that he seems to enjoy his work. . . . His happiness in baseball is genuine.

With all the grind of his long career he never has lost his joviality. . . . He is never less than happy. . . . Nobody can laugh like Gabby. . . . He simply winds up and lets go. . . . He laughs all over. . . . His face gets as red as a tomato and his frame shakes like a disintegrated jello.

Hartnett has an aversion to "work," although he is the hardest worker in the game. . . . Back in 1921 he was living with his parents in Millville, Mass., and working in a steel mill at Worcester, 26 miles away. . . . He had to get up at 5:30 in the morning and didn't get back until 7:30 at night. One morning it was 20 below. When he got to the plant both of his ears were frozen. Then and there he decided to make work and vowed he would never work again. . . . He never has.

Five Ambitions
Ambitions: Five, three of which he has achieved. He would like to live a hundred years and play a game of ball every day. Manage successfully a big league team. To catch more games than any other catcher. Win a National league pennant and then to lead a team to a world's championship.

Family: In 1929 he married Martha Henrietta Marshall. Children: Two, Charles Leo, Jr., known as Buddy, eight, and Sheila Ann, three. They reside in their own home, Chicago. He says the best thing he ever did was to get married and adds he would have been better off had he been married five years sooner. . . . "When you see a ball player who has settled down and saves his money you will see a good ball player," he opines. "When they blow their dough they begin to worry and it ruins them."

Born Dec. 20, 1900, at Woonsocket, R. I., eldest of 14 children, nine of whom are still living. Both parents still reside at Millville. . . . Father was a semi-pro catcher.

Marquette Points for Mustangs at Chicago
Milwaukee — (P)—Orders at Marquette stadium today were to "forget Wisconsin" as Coach John L. (Paddy) Driscoll set about to point his football eleven for the Mustangs of Southern Methodist Consolation from the 27 to 0 defeat Marquette took at Madison Saturday came with the belief that not again during the season will Marquette meet an opponent as well supplied in manpower.

Shiocton Wins Over Merchants

Score Is 6 to 3; Losers Get Two Hits Off Sabrowsky

GREENVILLE — Greenville Merchants bowed to Bronco Sabrowsky and Shiocton here yesterday in the first game of the Outagamie County league championship series, 6 to 3. Sabrowsky gave the Merchants just two hits one to Horn and one to Crowe. The second game is scheduled next Sunday at Shiocton.

Greenville expected to start Lefty Fredericks but he was unable to take the mound and Cliff Burton inherited the job. He tossed good enough ball giving five hits until the seventh when he became wild and Dats Crowe was called upon to finish. Sabrowsky fanned 11 while Burton whiffed 1 and walked 4 and Crowe fanned 1 and walked 1.

Shiocton scored a run in the second and another in the fourth. Greenville got into the game in the last of the fourth when three runs were scored. The Merchants loaded the bases on three errors, Sabrowsky hit the next batter and Crowe tagged Sabrowsky for the first Greenville hit and two more runs scored.

Shiocton went ahead with three in the seventh when Burton lost control and added one in the ninth for good measure.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

SHEBOYGAN FRIDAY NIGHT, Appleton Saturday, Clintonville Sunday; and that's how we get around.

Appleton High school was represented by a healthy delegation Friday night at Sheboygan and it did a tall lot of cheering especially during the second half when the Terrors came back. . . . Chuck Sample's number and the one on the program weren't the same and many persons thought Chuck wasn't playing. . . . But they weren't the lads in the game for Sheboygan. . . . Central appeared to be much lighter than Appleton, but its backfield moved with much more precision.

Buesing's catches of the two touchdown passes really were great. . . . Heinritz looked much better at tackle than in the backfield. . . . And if Swamp didn't earn a regular position back there no one did. . . . But give us Frankie Kamps, there's a ball player. . . . Once Frankie dropped his rubber teef protector in the dirt and had to ask for time out until he could wash it off.

Jake Stoll, who still teaches at Sheboygan and who was a Lawrence captain and end back a few years ago, was around and inquired about the present Vikings. . . . Too bad we couldn't have told him what to expect Saturday; he'd liked to have heard about it.

'Twas great to see the big crowd of Appleton people out to the Lawrence game. . . . And we're certain they'll be back as long as the Vikes play like they did Saturday. . . . Any one of them would have been satisfied with a tie and no fooling, they'll be talking about that win for a long time.

It looked bad when Coe came out for the game; those guys were big. . . . The game was one of the cleanest ever staged here. . . . There was only one 15-yard penalty and the boys hit hard but then helped each other up and added a pat on the back. . . . Once in the fourth period the Kohawks, then pretty much riled at trying to stop Novakofski, piled on a bit but slid all over each other or onto the ground and Obbie was hardly touched.

That Viking stand inside the 7-yard line was the ball game to us. . . . It showed stuff. . . . There wasn't a man in that line who didn't figure the Kohawks would be stopped. . . . It showed the advantage of charging hard and fast like nothing the boys ever will see.

And those nine men who went 60 minutes, 60-minute-men, those guys. . . . And the answer to any criticism against Bernie for keeping his lads moving all the time and driving them hard to keep them in top physical condition. . . . The others could have gone 60 minutes, too, if they'd had to.

Cy Siebold was carried off twice, once in each half. . . . The first time he tried to tackle with too much gusto and landed on his neck. . . . The next time he hurt that bum shoulder but he'll be back this week.

Vince Jones wasn't hurt when he rolled around out there in the second half. . . . Vince ate a lemon between halves and it's reaction almost killed him, he said. . . . He couldn't breathe. . . . Coe had a big husky center but the Vike guards flattened him often. . . . The Lawrence ends were much improved. . . . And the tackling was oh, so crisp and hard. . . . The Vikes were "on" the ball all the time and the best proof is that both the tackles recovered fumbles. . . . Jones got one back of the line of scrimmage and Lubenow was down to fall on a fumbled punt. . . . Lube played a great game considering the one week's practice. . . . That guy was god-sent and ask Bernie if you don't believe us.

Tension on the Vikes which ended with the victory was almost as terrific as with the Cubs last week. . . . They gave vent to it in many, many ways and Garvey booted his headguard almost half the length of the field.

Art Denney should take a bow. . . . He called the turn that Coe would not score. . . . And Ade Dillon, too, despite the fact he didn't even see the game. . . . He scouted Coe and the way the Vikes doped Coe plays indicated a job well done. . . .

Clintonville was the scene of another wild demonstration when the Truakers won the title. . . . "We're the guys they thought, too small for the league," one fellow yelled at the world in general. . . . The Truakers posed for a picture after the game. . . . They were afraid all season; superstitious. . . . And Joe Peticka was chafing at the bit waiting for Tomlin to arrive. . . . Joe knew there was business, a lot of it, up the street. . . . It was sort of appropriate that he should score the winning run for he's been the town's No. 1 baseball player for a long time. . . .

Consultations on the part of both squads were as many as during the European trouble last week. . . . And Manager Len Goerlinger wore a path from the first base coaching box to home to give batters instructions. . . . He must have traveled miles. . . . But hardly as far as the kid shagging balls. . . . He must have traveled ten miles first up one base line, then the other, then back of the plate. . . . In one inning his hiking was funny.

Red Smith didn't get a hit. . . . He says throwing footballs, blocking and such don't mix with baseball. . . . His mules were all tied up, he said, and he couldn't follow through. . . . Red didn't decide to catch until Sunday morning. . . . Felts took a lot of good natured kidding but the biggest kiddier in many ways was his father. . . . Then senior Felts sat along the third base line. . . .

The players carried on considerable repartee, especially Man Mountain Schell of the Rivers and Manager Goerlinger of the Truakers. . . . Schell, a pitcher, acted as first base coach. . . . Stan Smogoleski kicked at length once when he claimed Red Smith touched his bat.

In the seventh, Herman, Two Rivers' kid shortstop swung at one which went foul with a man on base and the whole Two Rivers dugout yelled at him and Maury Brault charged out to the baseline because he has been signaled to "lay one down." . . . He tried when he came back to the plate but between Brault's remarks and Red Smith's cracks, he didn't have a chance to settle down. . . . Red carried on a banter with everyone, and sometimes it appeared he talked the Two Rivers youngsters out of possible hits or even cuts at the ball.

Palmer's hit was one of the features of the game but not any more so than his great stab and throw to first on Meyer's roller in the eighth. . . . Another half inch and the ball would have been a hit.

Palmer's Hit in Ninth Gives Truckers Title

Blow Scores Peteka From Third Base With Winning Run
SCORE IS 3 TO 2
Sid Felts Allows Two Rivers Veterans Only Five Safeties

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
CLINTONVILLE—The Clintonville Truckers, one of the teams admitted to the Northern State league last spring as a last resort to make an 8-team circuit, yesterday afternoon won the league championship when it defeated Two Rivers by a 3 to 2 score.

A screeching single over second base by Herb Palmer of the Clintonville Truckers scored Joe Peteka from third base. The sacks were loaded at the time and there was one down. Palmer hit the first pitch and the big crowd went wild and there was a hot time all over town and especially at Joe Peteka's for the rest of the afternoon and all night.

Clintonville won the second round honors in the circuit by beating Seymour in the final game of the round. Two Rivers won the first round honors by nosing out Kaukauna after they finished the round tied.

In the first game of the championship series Clintonville bowed to Two Rivers, 4 to 2, despite the fact Tommy Tomlin gave only four hits. In the second game, last Sunday at Two Rivers, the Truckers came back and copped 5 to 1 behind Sid Felts.

Felts Shaky at Start
Felts was on the mound again yesterday and was shaky at the start. However, he pulled up a notch in his belt and kept on tossing and allowed five hits for the game. He fanned six and walked one.

Lucky Lucy Alberts, who pitched the first two games for Two Rivers, tossed yesterday's contest, too. He gave up eight hits, but three in the fifth and three in the ninth accounted for all of the Truckers' runs. He fanned four and walked three.

With a big crowd watching and with more than a few of the folks from Two Rivers, the Truckers got away to an auspicious start when Felts fanned the first two men to face him, Meyer and Blue, both taking the third strike. Pupeter then singled but Smogoleski rolled.

The Truckers further looked good when Schmidtke, first up, walked and advanced on Palmer's sacrifice. Wagner rolled as Schmidtke went to third but Red Smith was called out and kicked at least once whether he meant it or not.

Rivers Get Two Runs
Two Rivers landed on Felts with both feet in the second. Santroch hit a slow ball foul down third base way but Sid gave him another which he plastered into left for a double. Bault fled to left but Muldowney dropped a single back of second and Santroch stopped at third. Herman then slapped another hit to center and ended up at second base but was called out for failing to touch first. Santroch and Muldowney both scored on the play. Alberts rolled to end the frame.

Two Rivers got a man as far as second in the third but in the fourth retired on three pitched balls. Two rollers to third and a fly. The Truckers got Wagner as far as third in the fourth frame.

Clintonville broke into the scoring column and tied the count in the fifth but not until after it appeared the Truckers were going to be victims of bad base running, as they were in the first game.

Felts opened with a single to left. Peteka hit to third and Felts was forced at second as Joe made a play by inches. Ty Steff then came up and knocked the folks off their seats with a smashing double to left center. Peteka reached third on the play and then, for some reason or other, was waved home to be caught by 25 feet.

Hope sprang anew, however, when Kersten hit a slow roller to second and Jimmy Blue threw the ball over first base. Steff scored on the blow and the miscue. Kersten taking second. Schmidtke then smashed a drive into center and Kersten scampered home. Schmidtke stole second but the inning ended when Palmer fanned.

Trucks Load Bases
The first of the sixth saw Two Rivers get two men on via singles but Red Smith took a high foul to end the frame. Clintonville loaded the sacks without a hit in its half the inning but failed to score. Wagner rolled to Bault at third but when the ball took a funny hop Bault bobbled and Wagner was safe. Red Smith laid one down and Ankerson rolled. Felts was purposely walked for Wagner was on third, and then stole second. When Peteka was ticked on the elbow with a pitch the bases were loaded. But Steff had gotten a hit a few minutes before and another was expected too much. He rolled to short and Peteka was forced.

KERSTEN SCORES FOR TRUCKERS
Rollie Kersten's batting average with the Clintonville Truckers isn't very big for the season, but he crashed through in yesterday's game with Two Rivers for the championship with the tying run in the fifth frame (above) when Clintonville rallied with two markers. He was safe at first on an error, went to second on the overthrow, and scored on Schmidtke's single to center. The catcher is Pupeter. Clintonville won in the ninth, 3 to 2. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Pirates Eliminated Reds, Reds Eliminated Pirates

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK—(P)—Wait and see if it isn't Gomez versus Lee in the opener; Ruffing versus Bryant in the second and goodness knows who in the third. . . Cubs' pitchers are all tired out or their chances would be better. . . At that, you can get odds here the Bruins carry the Yanks to six games. . . That is if you spot a few points. . . Yankee special pulls out late today for the Windy City with our Dr. Sid Feder aboard to keep you posted on dongs en route. . . It was a blow to this chronicler that back-firing stomach forced him to cancel his Chicago reservations. . . But we expect to be on hand at the first game at the Yankee stadium next Saturday to give you the low and inside.

Football situation: Well, well and well. . . Prof. Crisler did all right for himself out at Michigan, didn't he? . . . (And we hope Charlie Bachman doesn't feel too hurt because he sure was loaded for that one.) . . . And Prof. Lou Little at Yale — what was the matter with him? . . . If you know the learned tactician, you know that when he starts shedding those crocodile tears, he has a lot more in his pocket than turkish towels. . . We sort of thought Bo McMillin and Co., would sneak up and topple Ohio State. . . And Tuss McLaughry of Brown can step up for a bow. . . His team beating Harvard was not entirely unexpected, but it was a feat, nevertheless.

Major Biff Jones stand against Minnesota showed one and all they had better keep the storm warnings up. . . Clemson, after a big start, folded against big time opposition. . . Just the same Red Dawson of Tulane, who lost to Clemson in the opener and tied with Auburn Saturday, will have to step fast to show his team is of Southeastern conference calibre. . . Alabama and Tennessee are the class down there.

Jimmy could tell Smogoleski, Steff had crawled back to the sack.

Palmer Hits One
Rollie Kersten then rattled another bunt down the first base line and was out as Peteka stopped at third. Steff at second. Schmidtke was next up and his appearance brought a hurried conference of the Two Rivers master minds. They decided to walk him but certainly not have failed to recognize Herb Palmer as the next batter. Or perhaps the Rivers were playing for a possible double play.

But this Palmer guy had been poison most of the season when the chips were down and he knocked the strategy all the way into Lake Michigan. Probably figuring Alberts would try to sneak the first pitch past him, Palmer took a tee hold and lined it into center as Peteka trotted home and Steff, too, for all anyone knows. But Joe had the run needed and whether Ty really counted probably never will be known.

Joe Peteka was first up and he hit a slow roller past the pitcher which Herman went after but couldn't quite handle. Then Ty Steff laid down a nice bunt along the first base line. Smogoleski rushed in after it and when he turned figured Steff was safe and made no play because Pitcher Alberts was falling over Steff and first base. He might have thrown to Jimmy Blue but didn't and that's where it was costly because Jimmy had noticed Steff had missed the bag in the collision. By the time

NEENAH—Neenah paid heavily for its 13 to 0 victory over the scrappy New London eleven here Saturday afternoon—and the price was a broken collar bone received by Co-Captain Robert Vanderwalker, right guard.

The other co-captain, Warren Kettering, left halfback, again starred for the Rockets, but this time he paced the Neenah eleven to a triumph, the first in two starts in Northeastern Wisconsin conference competition. Neenah tied Kaukauna, 6 to 6, in the opener.

Besides scoring a touchdown after intercepting a New London pass in the last minute of play, Kettering again did most of the ground gaining, kicked superlatively, passed profusely and made plenty of the tackles. The stocky halfback's punting was the outstanding feature of the tilt. His best boot which occurred at the opening was good for 60 yards, the ball being grounded on the 2-yard line. His other punts were good for 40 or 50 yards.

New London Threatens
After being pushed back on their heels during the entire first half, the Stacymen came in for a bit of glory in the second period and tested Neenah in the same manner. The difference, however, was that New London didn't have quite enough push to get over the goal-line, and then, too, they had to contend with Kettering's lengthy kicks.

Both teams scored the same number of first downs, nine. But eight of New London's first downs came in the second half, and the Stacymen got credit for only one in the first half. Neenah piled up five first downs in the first half and four in the second.

Neenah took to the air in the second quarter to score its first touchdown. It was one of the few passes completed by the Neenah team, Bunker, quarterback, threw a short one to Donald Bentzen, left end, who went over standing up.

Neenah Works Hard
New London made Neenah work hard for its first score. After a close threat, the result of Kettering's 60-yard punt, the Rockets persistently plugged into New London's territory, the sustained driving lasting nearly a quarter.

Neenah took the ball on their own 43-yard line. Krueger, fullback, picked up nine yards in two tries and Bunker went over for a first down. The Rockets collected six yards on a pass from Kettering to Krueger. Bunker plunged for a first down. Kettering crashed to the 16 and then Krueger waded to the 10 for another first down. New London drew a 5-yard penalty. Allen, right halfback, went a yard, Bunker gained a yard, and a reverse failed on fourth down, about two yards from the final marker.

Vanderwalker partially blocked a New London punt, the ball being grounded on the 14-yard line, through center to the 8-yard line. He picked up a couple of feet and then Bunker made it a first down on the 4. The Rockets were pulled back five yards by a penalty and then scored on the pass. Ketter-

Milwaukee—Four tons on the hoof! That's the total combined weights of the Marquette university football squad this fall. A survey shows that the average member of the 1938 Golden Avalanche is barely 20 years of age, weighs 164 pounds and is 5 feet, 11 inches tall. As it happens, not a single Marquette player hits all three of those average figures.

NEENAH BACK PLOWS THROUGH LINE; ROCKETS WIN

Upset Wins by Brown, Columbia Features of Saturday's Grid Tilts

BY DREW MIDDLETON
NEW YORK—(P)—Power and passing, twin geni of offensive football, continue to make — and break — the gridiron powers as the season, launched by two clamorous Saturdays, heads into a weekend filled with traditional, intersectional and conference contests.

Power alone was the deciding factor as Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Duke, Santa Clara and Cornell swept forward last Saturday at the head of the national parade. Resurgent Columbia, Ohio State and North Carolina all gained stature on the forward pass, which, however, failed signally for Rice, shaded 7-6 by Oklahoma in the day's major upset.

Sectional pictures began to take form as results came in much as expected, with only Rice's defeat, Brown's 20-13 squelching of Harvard and Idaho's 12-12 tie with Washington to shock the selectors. Here's how the situation looks in various major sectional groups, the Big Ten excepted:

Columbia Potent
East: Columbia, off to a notable start in the "ivy league" as Sid Luckman bombed Yale for a 27-14 win, takes on Army, victorious over Virginia Tech, 39-0, in its second warmup. Yale faces Penn, 34-6 winner over Lafayette, while Princeton and Dartmouth, still untested by real opposition, come together. Navy, 26-0 winner over Virginia Military, encounters Virginia. Pittsburgh, still tops in the more potent "poison ivy" group after a 22-6 triumph over Temple, meets its neighbor, Duquesne. Holy cross tackles Manhattan. Colgate takes on Duke. Southern conference co-leader, at Buffalo and Syracuse meets Maryland, beaten 33-0 by Penn State. Temple faces Texas Christian. George Washington meets Butler and Catholic plays at Detroit in Friday intersectional tussles.

Big six: Oklahoma, which brought the Big Six most of its glory with a 7-5 triumph over Rice, meets twice-beaten Texas. The Big Six conference campaign opens with Nebraska encountering Iowa State and Kansas State meeting Missouri, winner over Colorado.

Alabama Outstanding
Southeastern conference: Alabama, although untested in the conference, remains the outstanding team in the circuit. The Tide-men eased off with a 34-0 win over Howard.

Southwest conference: Davey O'Brien pitched Texas Christian right into the conference lead when his aerial acrobatics beat Arkansas, 21-14. The Razorbacks have their chance to stage a comeback when they meet Baylor, 20-6 victor over Oklahoma Aggies Friday, in this week's only circuit clash. Intersectional games still are in order, with S.M.U., after a 29-7 win over Arizona, meeting Marquette at Chicago, T.C.U. playing Temple, and Texas A. and M. going west to meet Santa Clara.

Pacific coast: Oregon, rather surprisingly, heads the conference standing after downing U.C.L.A. 14-12, for its second triumph. Rocky Mountain: The "big seven" race may be cleared up early when Brigham Young and Wyoming come together. B.Y.U. pasted Denver, 20-0, to emerge as a real contender while Wyoming, a favorite, was held to a scoreless tie by Denver.

Midwest, Teachers Conference Squads Begin Playing for Keene

By the Associated Press

WISCONSIN'S legion of barbershop football coaches was attempting to fit the state's university and college elevens into private form charts Monday after Saturday's sparkling array of games.

The 27-0 trouncing the University of Wisconsin imposed upon Marquette university hogged the headlines but was no proof of monopoly of football interest over the state, as the Midwest and Teachers conference teams, warmup games nearly all out of the way, began playing for keeps.

Platteville Teachers, apparently in for a better than average season, rang up two touchdowns—both by "Butch" Perkins on short plunges—to defeat Oshkosh Teachers, 14 to 0, at Oshkosh.

Stevens Point Wins

In an intersectional non-conference Fed game, Stevens Point won over Steut Institute, 7 to 0 at Stevens Point. Halfback Jim McGuire returned a punt 75 yards for the Pointers' touchdown.

Four other Teachers conference teams engaged with outside opposition. River Falls rolled up a 19 to 13 decision over Northland college of Ashland, in a game at River Falls. Eau Claire Peds took a 12 to 0 licking from Duluth Teachers at Duluth, while Superior lost to the Pittsburg. Kas., Teachers at Pittsburg, 7 to 0. Whitewater Teachers warmed up against Mission House of Plymouth, 54 to 7. Milwaukee had defeated LaCrosse Friday.

St. Norbert of DePere defeated Michigan Tech at Houghton, 13 to 0, for the fifth time in five years. Finkey plunged from the five yard line for the first touchdown. Kant made the second on a long pass from McNulty.

Knox Beats Ripon

from Coe 6 to 2 at Appleton. Novakowski passed 22 yards to Crawford, who ran 20 yards for the Vikings' touchdown. Novakowski stepped out of the end zone to give Coe its safety. Knox defeated Ripon, 7 to 0, in another conference affair. Quarterback Christiansen planned two yards for the touchdown after a 37-yard scoring drive.

Carroll's Pioneers combined a ground and aerial attack for a 7 to 0 victory over North Central of Minneapolis. But the Pioneers Napevieve, Ill., at Waukegan. Clayton plunged a foot to score after a long drive.

The Wisconsin School of Mines won at Platteville from Waverly Wartburg, Ia., 7 to 6, Quarterback Bemel making both the touchdown and point.

In all, Wisconsin teams played seven inter-state games, winning four and losing three to keep the favorable balance begun the preceeding Saturday.

Hunters Urged Not to Shoot Homing Pigeons

Madison (47)—The state conservation department appealed to hunters today to shoot only at ducks and leave the pigeons alone. Pigeon fanciers of St. Paul are sponsoring a derby of homing birds between Madison and the Minnesota capitol and they will be carrying messages from Governor LaFollette to Governor Benson.

THE CLOUDED MOON

more like it," she retorted. "You can give me what money you have in the house, and a check on your account in Brussels for the balance." She gave a short, harsh laugh. "And I don't think, somehow," she added, "that you will try to stop the check, because, if you did, I might feel inclined to talk. There are a number of insurance companies who would be very glad to listen to me."

Between Two Fires

Geiss sighed, as one whose faith in human nature has been rudely tried. "How true it is that one should never expect gratitude from one's inferiors! But come then, Henrietta. I will give you what money I have, and for the rest, as you so cleverly suggest, there will be a check on my Brussels account—a check that I shall not dare to stop."

The woman's eyes had never left his face, but save for a tightening of the thin lips, she gave no sign of the effect his strange had on her. Now she stood up and motioned him to precede her from the room.

"I'm in a hurry," she said. "The express leaves at midnight, and I don't fancy you want to linger."

The cartoonist shrugged, smiling gently at her. "Still suspicious?" he said chidingly. "Never fear, Henrietta, I will keep my word."

He passed quietly from the room, the woman following close at his heels, and with a sharp click the light went out.

"Thank Heaven they've cleared out," I said. "Now I can get you away."

"You wouldn't be so silly!" Ottilie retorted sharply. "We're here, and we know they'll both be gone in five minutes, and then we've all the night to look for that gun."

"I have," I corrected her gently. "But first, young woman, I'm going to see you clear away. And as I spoke, I peered cautiously over the edge of the balcony. But as I did so, I experienced a sudden sinking of the heart, for across the graveled forecourt below me I saw a dim shape move, a sinister, slinking shape that I recognized only too well.

"We're too late," I said dismally. "There's a bloke standing sentry down below there."

I heard her catch her breath. "Who is it?"

"A fellow called Noah More," I whispered back. "One of Geiss's creatures. He tried to do me in last night." But even as I spoke, I heard a faint, scuffling noise against the wall that told me, incredibly as it seemed, that the repulsive object below was starting to scale the house, even as we had done.

For an instant I hesitated, paralysed by the sheer horror of the situation. It seemed obvious that

Find Small High Schools Failing To Fulfill Needs

Committee Suggests Courses Suited to Farm Boys and Girls

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—A committee of Wisconsin educators under the supervision of the state department of public instruction today made public a report on its three year examination of the small high schools of Wisconsin, and found them wanting.

The small high schools of Wisconsin, those with an average enrollment of less than 100 and with six or less teachers, are in many cases failing to fulfill their function as efficient social institutions, the committee found, falling in many instances to offer curricular programs suited to and attractive to farm boys and girls and those in non-farm rural communities.

In the report, published by the state department of public instruction as a contribution to current research in Wisconsin educational problems, the authors point out that the city high schools have been planned for the most part to meet the needs of college entrance and of city life. The crux of the small high school deficiency, they concluded, is that it has usually attempted to copy the pattern of its larger, urban neighbor. "The rural school has tried to imitate the city school."

Gather Data

Data gathered by the committee include the facts that there are now about 443 high schools in Wisconsin, 231 of them with less than six teachers.

The small schools had a total teaching staff of 1,008, or one fifth of the total number of high school teachers in the state. The teaching staff of the small schools in the aggregate have a 40 per cent turnover each year, 17 per cent of them have had no previous experience, and 12 per cent have taught only one year. The median yearly salary is about $1,000, and most of them are products of state colleges. Moreover, more than 25 per cent of the teachers have no training, two thirds of them teach four or more different high school subjects, and nearly half "try to teach five or more subjects." In addition, most of them have charge of two or three extra curricular activities.

Analyzing curricular offerings of the small schools, the committee disclosed that two-thirds or more offer no course in agriculture, and only a few more have instruction in home economics. The typical curricular pattern is four units of English, four or five of social science, three or four of natural science, and two of mathematics. "Seventy
